TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,

May 5th, 1913.

The regular meeting of the town council was held on Monday evening, Mayor W. A. Steacy in the chair.

Present—Reeve Osborne and Councillors Alexander, Walters, Simpson, Graham, Carson and Dickinson.

The minutes of the last regular session were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Mr. Wm. Finkle stating that he wished to be relieved from his duties as Sanitary Inspector at once. The salary was away too small for the amount of work which had to be done.

On motion of Councillors Simpson and Alexander the question was referred to the Poor and Sanitary Committee to confer with Mr. Finkle and report.

A communication was read from the Napanee Water Works Co., in reference to the extension of the water main on Centre street, from Dundas across the river to Victoria street.

The distance of the extension asked for was 1025 feet and the excavation therefor would be rock nearly the whole distance, at an estimated cost of about $5000 for the work. The Waterworks Co. contended that the building of the main across the river would jeopardize the whole system for fire purposes. The question of laying the pipe across the river on the bridge was out of the question owing to the bridge having to be opened, and the laying of the pipe along the bottom of the river bed made it dangerous as at any time the pipe was liable to be broken by boats passing through the bridge. The Company was unwilling to undertake the work unless the town assumed all responsibility for the efficiency of the service for fire protection. The company also wanted the town to guarantee a gross annual earning of 8 per cent. on the cost of extension, provided no hydrants were installed, and an earning of 5 per cent. provided two hydrants were put in.

Without these assurances the company is unwilling to undertake the work. But if the town would assume the responsibility and guarantee the earning quoted above the company was ready to proceed with the work.

The communication was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee to report.

A communication was read from W. J. Paul, M.P., re gas buoys for the Napanee river. The request for the town had been referred to the Light House Board of Canada and later the council would be notified as to what action would be taken.

Letter ordered filed.

Mr. M. B. Mills tendered for the swing and taking care of the bridge. The amount asked for the work was the same as last year, provided the town would engage a man to swing the bridge while the dredge was working in that locality.

Tender accepted.

BATH.

Rev. Howard Kennedy, of Somerville, Mass., is visiting at Mrs. N. H. Peterson's.

Mr. and Mrs. James Graham have returned to the village from Napanee. The residents are well pleased with the R. & O. Steamboat company's effort to give them a daily boat, by sending the steamer America, which calls here daily at 9 a.m.

Mr. Johnson, of Comber, formerly of the N. C. Bank staff here, arrived on Thursday on a visit to old friends.

The fine weather has enabled the farmers to get seeding about all done.

The house occupied by Mr. Cuppage has been repainted, also a new cement walk laid in front of the same, which greatly improves its appearance.

DENBIGH.

Our farmers are all busy with their spring's work and plowing and seed- ing is the order of the day.

Fred Stein and Newman John, who have been away to New Ontario since last fall, have arrived home to assist their parents in their farming operations.

The Misses Annie John and Mary Falk who have been engaged in Napanee during the winter have also arrived home to stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Thompson, from near Kingston, paid a pleasant visit to the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartsch.

Rev. G. Daedel, of Rankin, conducted divine services in the Lutheran church on Sunday before last. In all probability the parsonage which has now been vacant for about a year will be occupied again by a resident minister within a few weeks.

Mr. Otto Kliem who had a large frame barn and a shed demolished by the heavy windstorm on Good Friday met with the further misfortune of losing a valuable horse a few days ago.

Mr. Wm. Chatson left for Edmonton, Sask., last week and may extend his prospecting tour to British Columbia before he returns home.

Mr. Oscar Chatson added to his Real Estate by purchasing another hundred acre farm from Mrs. Ernestine Stein,

The new hats for spring are so different from those of previous seasons that everyone is eager to see them. The display is a brilliant one, for though most of the hats are small, trimmings of vivid color are greatly in evidence. Another point to be noticed is that many of the smartest hats are very lightly trimmed. A tall mount cleverly confected of feathers, flowers, or ribbons, may be all, but, it must be placed "just so," and none but the cleverest and most inspired of milliners can hope to produce the chic and becoming results apparent in these new models.

Always Ready to March.

"There isn't an army post in the United States whose garrison couldn't make ready inside of an hour to start off for any point," said an army officer. "Clockwork? Well, there's nothing mechanical about it. A man naturally is ready when he sleeps and lives with his equipment at all times. There would be no confusion. How could there be when a trooper has his clothes, his gun, his bandolier with its ninety rounds of ammunition, his web belt with ninety rounds of ammunition and his twenty-four hour emergency ration that he always keeps in his haversack? The tentage is always lying ready for use, and when the men are going on a short march two men share a small shelter tent, half of which is carried by each man. Yes, sir, right after the bugle sounds, in half an hour, a man can sort out his belongings and be ready to go anywhere."—New York Sun.

No Reward For a Tin Mine.

For some unknown reason there is a widely prevalent idea that the United States offers a reward for the discovery of a tin mine that can be worked at a profit. Many letters are received by the geological survey every year asking about this supposed reward. Where the rumor started is unknown, but it seems to be fostered by unscrupulous or ignorant persons who have mining stock to sell. The survey's officials say that the United States does not offer and so far as known to them never has offered a reward for the discovery of a tin mine or any other mine.

A Reasonable Favor.

"So you have determined to sue me for breach of promise?"

"Yea."

"With damages?"

"Of course."

"Well, say, I've got just one favor to ask of you. Don't sue me for less than $100,000. I haven't got a dollar in the world that I can call my own, and it might help my credit."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Model Cookbook.

"What—you have written a new cookbook for your wife? How did you do it?"

"Easy enough. I wrote the name of each dish and underneath it the restaurant where it can be had best."—Flegende Blatter.

Western Member Urges National Commission to Control Shipping Services. Hon. Geo. Perley Favors of Enquiry to Find the Present Difficulty.

OTTAWA, May 6.—Upon to adjourn the House Mr. Meighen, the Conservative for Portage la Prairie, called attention of the House last evening to the startling and rapid increase in freight rates on the North. Mr. Meighen said that the shipping companies by means of a combine had bought up or forced business all the tramp steamers which formerly carried grain and other commodities from America to England. He recommended the appointment of an international commission by Great Britain and the United States to fix freight rates between North America and Europe.

In opening the discussion Arthur Meighen (Con., Portage la Prairie) said that the startling increase in rates he had mentioned continued long before he came into office. He said that if we would end to our milling industry, farming and stock raising, come impossible. Moreover, the increase was not only upon exports, but also on imports, and to such extent as to absorb the entire preference.

Mr. Meighen confessed he was unable to suggest any solution to the problem. To deny vessels to our ports meant driving through American channels.

The United States was facing the same problem, and Mr. Meighen suggested that the Government of Great Britain, Canada and the United States might by treaty conclude ocean rates between North America and Europe, such as the railway commissioners in Canada over railway rates.

Hon. Frank Oliver submitted the milling monopoly was as large as the shipping monopoly was informed that a sack of

The court-room, which was packed with spectators, was absolutely quiet as Gibson, deadly white, but composed, entered between two constables.

"Have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?" asked the clerk of the court. Gibson's voice was barely audible as he replied:

"My lord, it is an injustice that I should be sentenced for a crime I did not commit. It was convicted on perjured evidence."

Aubrey Bond, counsel for Gibson, made an unsuccessful plea for a reserved case on the ground that his lordship, before whom the case was tried, had made an unfair charge to the jury. After denying counsel's plea for a reserved case, Sir William advised Gibson not to hope for commutation of the sentence.

"It is not for me to say what steps the Department of Justice may take following this sentence, but I would strongly urge you to make full use of the time which remains before the sentence of the court is carried out, to ask forgiveness of our Father in heaven."

Sentence of death was then passed.

Hon. Frank Oliver submitted the milling monopoly was as wise as the shipping monopoly was informed that a sack of flour sold in England, freight at the same price for which within the shadow of the miller, after all, was the middleman, but initial producer and the ultimate consumer. In his opinion, the monopoly on the Great Lakes was more than the monopoly on the Hudson River. The big merger engineered Richelieu & Ontario on the lakes gave the combine a hold on the western farm criticized the Government in voting down the amendment to the recent R. & O. legislation by the member for South Mr. Maclean), which he would have checked this in.

W. F. Maclean said that most should deal with the monopoly on the great lakes with the ocean combine. The Canadian Pacific should be brought into the law and compelled to leave the ocean combine or over by the Government.

Hon. Geo. Perley thought way would be to have a commission of investigation or an official into rates, and after that the surely be some remedy suggested.

Hon. Mt. Pugsley said the Mr. Meighen had said the men had been "dealing vig with this question for some past, the acting Minister of Trade and Commerce had to admit was at a loss what to do, but a commission might assist in finding a solution.

"This commission plan is a good way to shelf a difficult," he said.

1, May 6.—Upon a motion in the House Mr. Arthur the Conservative member for the Prairies, called the attention of the House last evening to the rapid increase in shipping and rapid increase in tonnage on the North Atlantic. He said that the great shipyards by means of a combination bought up or forced out of all the tramp steamers merely carried grain, flour and commodities from North America to England. He suggested the establishment of an international commission by Great Britain, Canada and the United States to regulate trades between North America and Europe.

In the discussion, Mr. Meighen (Con., Portage la Prairie) said that the startling and ease in rates had begun fifteen months ago. DELEGATES MEET.

Sir Edmund Walker Speaks For Canada at Peace Conference.

NEW YORK, May 6.—New York formally welcomed within its doors yesterday the delegates who have come from Great Britain, Canada, Newfoundland and Australia, to join American representatives in a five-day conference looking toward centenary celebration of the treaty of Ghent to be held in Ghent and in English-speaking countries, beginning Dec. 24, 1914. Mayor Gaynor welcomed the visitors to the municipality, and Alton B. Parker, on behalf of the American delegation.

Mr. De Bruyne, representing the city of Ghent, Lord Werdale of England, and Sir Edmund Walker of Canada, made addresses in promotion of continued peace.

Sir Edmund Walker spoke of the friendly relations existing between the United States and Canada. Enormous investments of Canadian money in this country rest upon Canadians' confidence that war between the two countries is impossible, he said. Reciprocity as proposed under the Taft administration he opposed to the extent of resigning from his party, he recalled, but "that other kind of reciprocity," the tariff as now introduced, he discussed in friendly terms, declaring it will make for larger trade between the two countries.

Sir George Reid said he came here with the warmest appreciation of the Australian Government. With the Mother Country, Australia feels the same degree of warmth and affection for the United States, he declared.

EUROPE TO JUDGE.

Montenegro Puts Scutari In Hands of Powers.

LONDON, May 6.—Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, announced at yesterday's meeting of the ambassadors that Montenegro had unconditionally placed the question of the future of Scutari in the hands of the European powers.

The decision by King Nicholas at the very last moment, had the effect of immediately relieving the great tension in European politics, and caused unbounded satisfaction to diplomats and the general public.

The Stock Exchange at once responded to this feeling, and it was generally hoped that this action of Montenegro would do away with all necessity for military incursion into Albania such as Austria and Italy were contemplating against Essad Pasha, the former Turkish commander of Scutari, Djavid Pasha, with his refugee Turkish troops and other independent leaders, on the plea of restoring order. The example of Montenegro will, it is expected, have a salutary effect in causing other disturbing elements in the Balkan peninsula to bow to the will of Europe.

IMPERIAL TELEGRAPHS

Bill Respecting Government Control Read in House.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier Introduces Important Measure Whereby Universal Radio Syndicate Will Be Subsidized In Order to Provide Closer Intercommunication With Heart of Empire.

OTTAWA, May 6.—The Government's new bill respecting Imperial wireless communication provided matter for debate in the Commons yesterday.

The first reading was given to Postmaster-General Pelletier's bill "to provide for more advantageous conditions for telegraphic communications between Canada, the United Kingdom and other parts of the British Empire." The bill ratifies a contract between the Government of Canada and the universal radio telegraph syndicate, by which the latter is permitted to establish stations in Canada for the transmission of messages by wireless to the United Kingdom.

No subsidy is to be paid the company and, by the terms of the bill, its maximum rates are fixed for the present code messages at 16 cents, plain messages 8 cents, Government messages 5c., and press messages 4c. per word, respectively. General control of the all-ocean cable and wireless rates is placed in a committee of the Privy Council, to consist of the Postmaster-General, the Minister of Marine, Minister of Railways and the Minister of Public Works.

The Government is not bound by its contract to give over all or any of its business to the syndicate.

Mr. Pelletier said that Postmaster-General Samuel of Great Britain was opposed to constructing the Atlantic cable. At least two cable lines would be necessary and their cost would be five million dollars. Such rapid progress was being made in the matter of wireless telegraphy that the cable lines might be obsolete by the time they were finished. Besides Canada did not own any land lines between Montreal and Vancouver.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux doubted if much progress was being made towards cheaper rates by Mr. Pelletier's bill. There was some question as to the feasibility of wireless telegraphy across the ocean. Certainly the Marconi Co. had not done anything as yet to earn its subsidy. A state-owned cable across the Atlantic was the only effective way to reduce rates.

TWO PATIENTS CURED.

Friedmann Subjects in Toronto Re- ported Nearly Better.

TORONTO, May 6.—The re-visit to Toronto yesterday of Dr. Friedmann to the patients he inoculated here several weeks ago, brought forth results that surprised even the German doctor himself. Two of the patients were practically cured, Harry Rosen, 52 Alice street, and Oscar Kreigel, 37 Denison avenue. Both men stated to the doctor they were feeling fine. As a result of their cure, neither of these men required injections yesterday, and are now able to walk around out of doors. Kriegel, who had the disease so bad that he could not walk, stated he was up and walking around a short time after he was inoculated on Dr. Friedmann's last visit to this city.

Although the treatment had not had such a remarkable effect on the other patients inoculated here by Dr. Fried-mann, with few exceptions they all showed improvement.

the Postmaster-General upon his efforts to date to obtain cheaper cable rates, regretted that he was not going ahead with the construction of an allred cable between Canada and the Mother Country. The private-owned cable companies had shown themselves to be public enemies. They were owned and controlled in New York, and it was intolerable that the cable system of the Empire should be under the control of the United States.

He favored Government ownership of the land lines and the service across the ocean. Low cable rates meant a free exchange of public opinion and enlightened public opinion would do more to prevent wars than any other factor. Public opinion was now the big policeman which kept the world in order.

cussed the bill.

Foley, Welch and Stewart To Cut Selkirk Tunnel for C.P.R.

WINNIPEG, May 6.—Foley, Welch and Stewart will, it is practically decided, construct the Roger Pass double track tunnel through the Selkirk Mountains, according to a semi-official statement made at the Canadian Pacific Railway offices yesterday. The construction company will build not only the tunnel, but also over seven miles of double track approaches on each side of the tunnel, making a total stretch of twenty miles double track, including over five miles of tunnel. Tenders are also being called for 49 miles of additional double track in the mountains.

The undertaking is a tremendous one and it is understood four years of time are allowed to complete the work. As to the number of men to be employed, nothing definite is yet known, though the intention is to use all practicable for the work.

GAG NOT NECESSARY

WHEN GOVERNMENT ATTENDS TO BUSINESS, OPPOSITION HELPS.

Ottawa, May 3, 1913—No more convincing proof of the lack of necessity for the closure gag could be imagined than the speed with which business has been put through parliament during the past week. As a matter of fact more business was done in five days than during the whole session since Nov. 21. The manner in which the work went on absolutely proved the Opposition contention that they never had any intention of obstructing the business of Parliament except with regard to the Naval Bill, which they felt bound to oppose by every constitutional means in their power. The government has been labouring to spread the impression that a deliberate effort was being made to hold up the business of parliament. This effort to excuse legislative incompetence and the closure has fallen to the ground. On Tuesday no fewer than five important measures were put through their third reading—The Gold and Silverware Markings Bill, the Bill regulating the use of radio-telegraphy, the West Indian trade agreement, the Aid to Agriculture Bill, and the High-

been exploded as that brought forward by Herr Liebknecht in the German parliament, when he proved beyond the possibility of a doubt that the great German armament firm of Krupps, in league with other members of the armament trust, was using its huge resources not merely to sell more goods, but actually to create wars and war scares in order to increase the market for this "murder trust."

Herr Liebknecht proved beyond peradventure that the Krupps had secret agents whose business it was to bribe officials in the war office to secure information regarding war measures; that they had secret agents whose business it was to bribe the German press to publish inflammatory material aimed at France and Great Britain so as to foment war feeling between them; that the trust had secret agents in France and probably in England, whose business it was to bribe newspapers into publishing false news regarding naval and military expansion in those countries so as to cause the German people to demand greater offensive armaments, with consequent demand for the murderous goods turned out by the Armament trust. Herr Liebknecht also showed that the trust would sell war supplies to Germany's possible enemies 30% cheaper than to Germany and that the armament trusts of the several countries were working together to create war scares so as to swell the demand for cannon has shown its abhorrence of anything like a Canadian navy instead of a contribution of $35,000,000 to swell the coffers of the disgraced Armament trust. First they so mishandled the affairs of the Canadian navy department that Admiral Kingsmill reported that under the unsettled conditions of the navy recruiting on the Niobe and Rainbow had practically ceased. Now to further encourage Canadians to avoid their own naval service the government has notified the Canadian recruits on the Niobe that they may leave the service any time without buying their discharge. This is not merely a covert intimation to the men that Canadian sailors are not wanted for the Canadian navy but is also a waste of money. The training of a naval recruit on a war ship involves great expense in his education. The government tells these men that after having been partly educated for the naval service at the country's expense they can go any time they like, trained to practice a trade on shore and without giving the country any adequate return for this education.

The antipathy of the Borden government to any real Canadian Naval Policy is showing up more strongly every day.

LABOR WILL NOT TOLERATE THE GAG.

That gag rule as enforced by the Borden government will not be tolerated by the labor interests of Canada was shown in parliament by Mr. Verville, the representative of labor in the Dominion parliament. Mr. Verville was backed by direct messages from 171 Canadian labor organizations, representing 80,000 men, and he served notice on the government that labor in Canada definitely declined to submit to the gagging of its parliamentary representatives.

"So strong is the feeling against this thing among the labor interests which I represent" said Mr. Verville, "that they have lost all confidence in the present government. Labor knows the hurt of arbitrary methods and dictatorship. It is exactly what labor will not stand for in this country; it is exactly what common-sense people of all classes will not stand for in Canada, and it is exactly what their representatives will not stand for.—You try to apply it on me when I am talking and you will find that Russian rule is not for Canada."

A Sincere Joker.

The returning war correspondents in London and Paris had many Servian stories to tell illustrating, they said, the Servian official characteristics.

A high Government official gave a dinner one night to which he invited many other high Government officials and their wives. It was a notable function, and the ladies wore all their jewels. The wife of the host was especially radiant and had on a famous pearl necklace. This was much admired, and many of those present expressed the desire to see it at closer range, so the hostess graciously complied and placed the necklace on a richly chased silver platter or dish and ordered the dish passed round the table.

For some reason the electric lights went out momentarily, and when they came on again the necklace was gone.

The host rose and said: "I regret to

COST OF A COCK

The Drink a Young Business to Have Before Lunch

In New York city there who once paid $6,000 for He did not know it then, and will know it unless he happens to this story.

A certain prosperous man company needed a new manager. The salary was year. The officers of the considered a great many and at last decided to offer to a clever young man of business ability. He seemed to the man for that particular president and general manager the young man to lunch with a downtown club, ostensibly over a less important business. They wanted to "look him once more."

The man met them at the hour, and the president, a make the occasion a pleasure, ordered an elaborate lunch. The waiter was a long time in the first course, and the guest to appear ill at ease. He s

the closure has run to the ground. On Tuesday no fewer than five important measures were put through their third reading—The Gold and Silverware Markings Bill, the Bill regulating the use of radio-telegraphy, the West Indian trade agreement, the Aid to Agriculture Bill, and the Highways Aid Bill.

The fact remains that all this business might have been done months ago but for the obstinacy of the government, which itself practised obstruction by arrogantly declaring that unless the Naval Bill were passed parliament should do no other business—and then attempted to shoulder the blame for this absurd course on the Opposition. Had the government been less concerned with inventing Imperial emergencies, whose existence was denied by the British government, and more concerned with the business of the country, the programme of parliament might have been practically over by now instead of beginning supply might have been voted and the Budget brought down months ago to the great relief of the business anxious to know what is to be done with the tariff.

CONSUMERS SACRIFICED TO "INTERESTS."

An instance of much fuss for little result was shown in the West Indies trade agreement, which was given its third reading on Tuesday, and which was aptly characterized as "a one-horse trade agreement" by Mr. Carvel. How little the measure means is shown by the fact that under the British preference of 33½% Canada only imported $9,000,000 of goods from the West Indies and sent but $300,000 worth.

But to whatever degree the agreement is effective it will increase the cost of living in Canada by increasing the cost of certain goods and reducing it on nothing. In order to give the necessary 20% preference in the West Indies duty will be imposed upon lime-juice, feed-molasses, cocoa-beans and other articles which are now free. It was also shown that the agreement would involve an increase in the cost of sugar. At present the Canadian sugar refiner can import raw sugar from other countries at a preferred rate, but this will be stricken out as regards other countries so as to give the preference to the West Indies. The net result will of course be dearer sugar.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley moved an amendment that as soon as the West Indies reduced their tariff on Canadian goods by a 50% preference, Canada should put imports from the West Indies on free list. He showed that since the West Indies products did not compete with anything raised in Canada the result of such an arrangement would be to lower the cost of living in Canada, while to get such an advantage the West Indies might reasonably give a 50% preference where a 20% preference meant practically nothing on a low revenue tariff.

The whole thing was summed up by Mr. Carvel—"the only thing in its favor is that the whole business is so small that the newspapers will not discuss it, the politicians will not notice it, and I presume if this Bill goes through Parliament you will never hear of it again."

In order to put through this legislation whose only effect will be to increase the cost of living here for the benefit of the West Indies, the government proposes to spend $200,000 a year instead of $100,000 in subsidies for the four vessels giving direct service to the West Indies, the only return for this being that two of the ships will be replaced by slightly better vessels.

ARMAMENT TRUSTS THE WAR MAKERS.

No such world-wide scandal has ever

ed out by the Armament trust. Herr Liebknecht also showed that the trust would sell war supplies to Germany's possible enemies 30% cheaper than to Germany and that the armament trusts of the several countries were working together to create war scares so as to swell the demand for cannon and guns.

There is no doubt that similar systems exist in Great Britain. In fact the extent to which this malignant activity has spread is shown by Mr. Bourassa's accusation in Le Devoir that the French weeklies of Quebec province were being paid 14 cents an inch to publish inflammatory war news. Who pays that 14 cents an inch, and why? The answer is obvious.

Just how far this scandal affects Great Britain is not known, but enough has come to the surface to show that for years past the three greatest countries of the world have been bled white with taxation to prepare for wars which have been deliberately fomented by the people who manufacture war supplies.

In face of these terrible revelations where can be the emergency which was so freely exploited by Mr. Borden until he was shamed into dropping it and attending to the country's proper business? Mr. Borden can no longer imagine that the Canadian people will be fooled by these re-vamped war scares, bought at so much an inch or so much a life, by the Armament trust. The whole incident might well give the government reason to drop its mad scheme to place ships at Gibraltar to respond to any blast sounded by the subsidized war scare mongers and apply their time to the problem of reasonable defence for Canadian shores. Should Mr. Borden continue his emergency cry and his determination to force the $35,000,000 naval tribute upon an unwilling country it may well lead to the suspicion that no inconsiderable portion of this $35,000,000 may find its way back to the party election funds in the way of the "rake offs" which are part of the machinery of the Armament trusts.

LAURIER'S WORK GOES ON.

While Japan and the United States are indulging in war talk over the anti-Japanese legislation passed by the State of California, Canada has long had the whole vexed question of immigration from Japan amicably settled. There is no law forbidding the Japanese settling in Canada, or any anti-Japanese legislation. By a friendly arrangement between the two nations the Japanese government strictly regulates the number of Japanese emigrating to Canada. The dignity of both nations is thus preserved and what might have proven ground for a bitter quarrel or perhaps war was avoided. This was the work of the Laurier government, and the delicate negotiations which have proven so beneficial for Canada were made by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux in 1909. Even the Borden government cannot prevent Laurier's work from going on.

However, in order that the joker may not be discovered for his clumsy joke and may restore the pearls, I shall turn off the lights again and when they come on I shall expect the necklace to be back on the silver platter."

He turned off the lights. The room was in darkness for half a minute. Then he turned them on again, and the silver dish was gone also.

Compradors In China.

The comprador is an important factor in the treaty ports of China. Many large foreign firms are engaged in the import and export trade at these ports, and each employs a comprador, a wealthy Chinese, whose business it is to keep himself acquainted with the Chinese merchants in the various lines of trade in which his house is interested, in Tien Tsin, Pekin and the other cities of north China. He receives a commission on all that he buys or sells for the firm. In return, if credit be given to any Chinese shop or firm, the comprador guarantees the obligation, and if the shopkeeper does not pay at the appointed time he must pay out of his own pocket.

To Cure Scars.

Scars are often very ugly things and disagreeable marks when they exist in a prominent place on the skin. Probably nothing can remove a big scar the tissue of which has become fibrous and unyielding, but the following recipe, to be applied on lint and allowed to remain on the part for a little time daily, will effect an improvement in small scars and blemishes: Borax, one and a half ounces; salicylic acid, twelve grains; glycerin, three drams; rosewater, six ounces. Mix.

Tit For Tat.

Mr. Bacon—Do you think the education of animals is accomplished by the gift of imitation or the force of instinct, dear?

Mrs. Bacon—Oh, by the gift of imitation, of course. Haven't you noticed how the dog growls when you are around?

Mr. Bacon—Perhaps you are right, dear, for I have noticed that the hens cackle more when you're about.

Animals Hate Solitude.

In all the animal world there is no voluntary recluse or hermit. No animal, whether wild or domestic, ever likes to be alone for very long at a time. Even the birds of all kinds and species hate solitude. Parrots particularly and all gregarious birds of the tropics begin to mope and pine away if kept in solitary captivity.

In front of the Lord Abbot, at the foot of the steps leading up to the front of the pulpit or platform, was a long line of 150 priests, all dependent on success in the coming ordeal for promotion in the sect. The first approached in his "tabi," and, bending his head before the Lord Abbot, submitted to him the question which had resulted from his period of meditation:

"What would be the color of the maple leaves in the mountains in the present month?"

Up went the right arm of the Lord Abbot. Down came the thick stick on the shoulders of the candidate.

"My son, their color would be redder than the tints of the flowers in May."

Up again went the arm, down again came the stick, and the candidate retired, gratefully thanking his Holiness for the wisdom of his reply. The second candidate then advanced and bowed before the Lord Abbot.

FIRST AID TO BADLY BURNED.

Not Oil But: It Water Bath, According To Reputable Physician.

The following rather unusual advice as to what to do in the case of bad burns is given by a physician and printed in a recent number of a most conservative publication:

All children will play with fire unless they have been taught, either by precept or experience, not to do so, and accidents will happen even when every precaution has been taken. It is therefore most desirable in the case of burns that parents should know what—and above all what not—to do while waiting for the doctor to come.

The first thing is to fight shock with all the resources at command, because shock is usually the immediate cause of death. Too often shock is aggravated rather than helped by the treatment it receives.

Valuable time is wasted and unnecessary agony caused in trying to remove the clothing then various applications of oil or of whatever else the distracted bystanders may have heard was good for burns are made, until by the time the doctor arrives, irremedial mischief is done.

Do not waste time in any such way, but immediately prepare a warm salt water bath and gently place the child in it, clothes and all. If the clothes are much burned the warm water will make them easier to remove, and the child can be kept in the bath until the pulse and the temperature show that a reaction from the shock has taken place. It will often be necessary for some strong and careful person to kneel and hold the patient in the best position.

Even after the child has been placed in bed with the proper dressings, the bath should be given again if there are indications that shock is returning. Always remember that speed is essential. Even the slightest delay is dangerous.

Almost everyone believes that in the case of burns water is always harmful and oil always helpful. You will be wise to reverse the rule and learn it by heart. In case of burns fill the bath with warm water, adding salt in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a pint of water, and hold the child in it, clothes and all, until the doctor arrives.

Very Sinister, Indeed.

"This bill was innocent on its face, but beneath there lurked a most sinister significance."

The speaker was discussing a measure of which he disapproved.

"The bill reminded me, in fact," he said, "of an urchin's question. His question—innocent enough in appearance, dear knows—was this:

"Would you mind making a noise like a frog, uncle?"

"And why," said the uncle, with an amuse smile—"why, Tommy, do you desire me to make a noise like a frog?"

"Because," replied the urchin, "whenever I ask daddy to buy me anything he always says, 'Wait till your uncle croaks.'"

NEW GOLD LEAF PROCESS.

Interesting Method Introduced by London Firm of Producers.

In a new process for the manufacture of gold leaf introduced by a London firm a highly polished aluminum ring about five feet in diameter and five and one-half inches wide is covered with an adhesive substance, such as a solution of gum, and is allowed to dry. The adhesive surface is dusted with metallic powder so that it is covered with a very thin layer of base metal. This layer is polished and the ring is rotated slowly with its lower surface in contact with a solution of a nickel salt, the ring being connected with one pole of a battery, while the other pole is immersed in the nickel solution.

An electro-deposit of nickel is thus produced on the polished layer of base metal. The nickel deposit is washed and the ring is rotated with its surface in contact with a solution of gold, the electrical connections being as before, so that the latter metal is electroplated on the nickel. There are thus four layers on the periphery of the ring, namely, gum, base metal, nickel and gold, but each layer of metal is so thin that the combination was celebrated by a five days' at the Sojiji Temple, between ia and Tokio, writes Reuter's respondent. The last he festivities attracted great of believers and of the curi- that day was performed the mony of "amondo," or ques-

for the wisdom of his reply. The second candidate then advanced and bowed before the Lord Abbot.

"What," he said, in a piping voice, "should we do to escape the heat in summer and the cold in winter?" Down came the stick with a smart crack.

"Go where there is neither heat nor cold, neither summer nor winter."

Number three offered only an assertion: "The moon is in the blue sky." The Lord Abbot laid on with increased vehemence as he thundered: "And water is in the jar," and the parting stroke broke the stick in his hand. One candidate placed the conundrum: "For what is the sword, to kill a man or to save him?"

In the course of the ceremony the Lord Abbot broke twelve sticks. The beating is regarded according to the principles of the sect as a means of testing whether the candidate is capable of undergoing hardships in the cause of Buddha, to train their endurance and to develop their spirit of self-control.

Nationality of Electric Terms.

The nationality of the various units of measurements of electric current is given in The Scientific American. The ampere, which is the unit of volume, is French, taken from the name of Andre Marie Ampere, who founded the science of electric dynamics. The volt, which is the unit of the pressure which causes the current to flow, is Italian. The watt, which is the unit of energy and the product of the volt and ampere, is English. The ohm, which is the measure of resistance, is characteristically German. America boasts only one electric term so far, the henry, which is the unit of self induction.

Ivory For Billiard Balls.

The experience of the workers who turn ivory for billiard balls has shown that, as it dries, ivory shrinks. In the case of the task the shrinkage is greater in width than it is in length. The tusks of cow elephants have been found best adapted to the making of billiard balls. The task of the female is not so curved as that of the male, and the fine "nerve passage" is not so clearly seen.

Billiard balls are turned in the rough and kept in a warm room for a long time, sometimes as long as two years. Then, after shrinking, they are turned again and to the "true."

The History of Tacitus.

The entire history of Tacitus, as we have the work, was regained from a single copy found in the fifteenth century in a monastery of Westphalia. That we should owe the works of this author to one copy is a remarkable circumstance, for the Emperor Tacitus, who claimed to be descendant of the historian, had copies of the history placed in every library of the empire and each year had ten copies transcribed for presentation to scholars. All, it seems, perished, save the Westphalian copy.

The Ermine.

The ermine is white with the exception of the tip of its tail, which is black. These tips, dressed with the white fur at regular intervals, make the spotting of black which is seen on state garments of ermine.

"What is the next query?" he asked, when he had gone halfway through the pile of letters.

"Oh," said John, "a reader in South Africa wants to know how to prevent the hairs in his moustache from falling out. What have I to put down, sir?"

"Well," replied the editor, after a pause, "just put down, 'The best way to prevent hairs from falling out is to brush them lightly apart—and keep them from quarrelling'."—Answers.

Too Difficult To Retract.

The late Herr Gotthilf Weistein, the famous German book collector, who had a very bad impediment in his speech, once got into an argument with a man to whom he had taken a great dislike. The dispute became hotter and hotter until Weistein completely lost his temper.

"You're a f-f-f-f-f-fool!" he shouted furiously.

"Heir Weistein," replied his opponent coldly, "you must retract that at once!"

"Never!" retorted Weistein. "I'm only to g-g-glad to g-g-get it out!"

Or Is It Curiosity?

Just why should a call on the telephone be deemed important enough to break up the average personal conversation? Most men will cut a talk in two on getting a telephone summons and will turn at once to the instrument instead of telling a clerk to have the telephone caller wait or to call up later. Is there something hypnotic in the ring of a telephone, or is it the glad certainty that the one who uses the wire will be brief, while the personal caller may talk on forever?

Peru's Lost Golden Chain.

The most persistent treasure hunt carried on by the Peruvians has been that for the golden chain made by the Huayana Capac, which was long enough to be stretched all around the great square of Cuzco and was thrown into the lake of Urocos lest it should fall into the hands of the Spaniards. Everybody believes it to be still at the bottom of the lake, which is very deep.

Mecca.

Mecca is a large city and a principal one of the east. The temple of Mecca, to which so many pilgrims annually travel, forms a spacious square about a quarter of a mile in each direction, with a quadruple row of columns. A number of steps lead down to Mohammed's house, and within it is the black stone said to have been brought by the angel Gabriel for its foundation.

ing as before, so that the latter metal is electroplated on the nickel. There are thus four layers on the periphery of the ring, namely, gum, base metal, nickel and gold, but each layer of metal is so thin that the combination is said to be even thinner than the best gold leaf.

To remove the leaf from the aluminum ring a transverse cut is made in the continuous film, and, starting from this cut, the ring is rotated slowly with its lower part immersed in a liquid which dissolves the adhesive substance, when the film falls from it and is received upon a band of paper traveling at the same speed as the periphery of the ring. The film and paper are then cut up and made into books.

Meyerbeer.

Meyerbeer was so nervous and "fidgety" about his works that when they were in course of preparation or rehearsal or performance he never gave himself or any one else concerned a moment's peace of mind. He was constantly making changes or alterations in the score and would sometimes write a passage in three or four different colored inks, in order to try the different effects, and then could not make up his mind which was the best. He worried over his opera "L'Africaine" so long, delaying, re-touching and polishing, even while it was in rehearsal, that the self-imposed labor made him ill, and he died before the first public performance.

Constantinople.

Constantinople has been threatened before by the Bulgarians, the most memorable of the early attacks having been made in 813, when the barbarian Krum arrived before the city's walls. The siege, it is related, was begun with high ritual, but before more than a demonstration had been made the Byzantine emperor came to terms. While the negotiations were going on Krum was nearly killed, a peril which so enraged the founder of the Bulgarian empire that he laid waste the suburbs and retired with a host of captives. Fortunately for Constantinople, when the Bulgarian prince returned to take a fuller revenge he was seized with apoplexy and died.

How to Fluff the Hair.

Hair can be fluffed and made to stand out well from the head, even without curling, by brushing it with an outward twist of the wrist that lifts the hair up from the scalp.

For this brushing, divide the hair into strands and go over the head in a circle, then begin further up and continue until all the hair has been lifted and lightened.

If this style of brushing is kept up daily, or even several times a week, the straightest and stringiest of hair soon becomes dry and easy to puff out from the face.

Hired Wedding Presents.

Did you ever hear of hired wedding presents? Some curious information about them is given by the Paris Excelsior, which declares that wedding presents may be hired for the occasion. The mother who is anxious to make a brave show of presents at her daughter's wedding has only to go to one of the large stores in the opera quarter. There a complete set of presents may be hired. The goods remain under the care of a shopman disguised as a guest. Honor is thus saved, but the journal adds that it is as well when paying a first visit to the young couple not to ask to be shown some of the charming gifts of jewelry exhibited on the wedding day.

SOILING CROPS FOR DAIRY COWS. Play Ball.

Pastures are good this spring, but later in July and August pastures get thin, and on shallow soils the grass burns up dry and the cows drop off in milk. To prevent this loss plan now to have some green food to cut and feed to the milch cows when pastures begin to run short.

The best early crop is oats and peas, sown equal parts by weight. If sown at intervals for ten days this gives a continuous green feed for a month or more. When the oats and peas are done corn will be well enough advanced to cut for green feed. It may be sown either in drills or broadcast, but better in drills about 24 inches apart.

The first cutting of Alfalfa may be cut and fed green to the cows. If the weather is rainy in June there is usually trouble in saving the first cutting and it may be fed with good advantage to the cows.

Milk can be produced cheaper in the summer than in the winter. Therefore it does not pay to limit the cows in feed at the very time they need it the most, and will pay immediate returns in milk.

SPRAYING FOR CODLING MOTH.

Wormy apples are caused by the larvae of the Codling Moth. This is a little grayish brown moth that flies in the orchard just about dusk and lays its eggs on the small apple leaves, near the blossoms. In a few days these eggs hatch out and the young larvae crawl onto the nearest apple, and usually bore hole into the apple at the calyx end, or sometimes where two apples touch.

To poison these worms before they get into the apple, spray just after the blossoms fall with the following mixture:

Lime Sulphur.....	1 gal.
Water.....	40 gals.
Lead Arsenate.....	2½ gals.

Mix the Lead Arsenate up with water into a milky paste and then put into the lime-sulphur mixture just before spraying is begun. The Lead arsenate is heavy and will sink to the bottom unless the pump is fitted with an agitator.

The poison should be put on every apple and if this is done at the right time the fruit will be free from worms.

This mixture will also control the young tent caterpillars, which eat the leaves. Copies of the Spray Calendar and bulletin on "Apple Orcharding" may be obtained free from the Agricultural Office, Napanee.

DISTRIBUTION OF PURE BRED MALE ANIMALS BY DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, OTTAWA.

Realizing that inability to secure the use of well-bred male animals is at the present time one of the greatest difficulties standing in the way of live stock development in many parts of Canada, particularly in the newly settled districts, the Dominion Department of Agriculture, through the Live Stock Branch, is this year undertaking a widespread distribution of pure bred stallions, bulls, rams and boars. The original cost of the animals will be born by the Department and they will be placed in the hands of such local organizations as agree to the conditions governing the distribution. In a word these sires will remain the property of the Department, but the local associations will be responsible for their proper maintenance and management under the general supervision of Officers of the Live Stock Branch. In the case of stallions, the members of the associations will also be required to pay a fee covering an annual insurance premium.

... responsible for their proper maintenance and management under the general supervision of Officers of the Live Stock Branch. In the case of stallions, the members of the associations will also be required to pay a fee covering an annual insurance premium.

All animals distributed will be bought from home breeders and will be Canadian bred. As far as possible, they will be purchased in the province in which they are to be placed. In this way Canadian breeders will receive encouragement and their market will be increased not only directly but also indirectly through the emphasis given throughout the country to the value of pure bred sires. It may be added that it is not the intention to place the animals in districts where suitable male animals of the same class are already owned by private individuals. The aim is rather to aid sections where pure bred sires are lacking and as well to encourage new communities in following a proper and intelligent system in breeding.

All bulls distributed will be purchased subject to the tuberculin test and only stallions which have passed a rigid veterinary inspection for soundness will be selected.

In order to take advantage of this form of assistance, it will be necessary for interested parties, in any section, to undertake the organization of a local association in whose hands such sires as are required may be placed. Complete information regarding the rules and regulations governing the distribution may be made upon application to the Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa. Whenever possible an Officer of the Branch will render assistance in the perfecting of the necessary local organization.

THE BUSINESS MAN A STATIONERY.

"Is The Cobbler's Son Well?"

The merchant encourages to buy a good article in price which may be cheap right, without doubt, but he fails to learn this lesson especially is this noticeable—some envelopes which through the mail are a disappointment.

We wonder if the merchant understands that his business is measured oftentimes by the stationery he sends out—the quality of paper in the bills—we venture to say that nothing which points out man's carelessness and gets up more plainly than the style of the stationery he advertises his standard—it clearly to the public what goods they may expect at his shop.

If the merchant sends out a wash rag of a letterhead, invoice or statement, the customer reasonably expects the same quality and cheapness in the merchandise.

Just think over the business you are acquainted with the quality of their stationery.

And Mr. Business-man, over too and see that you give proper attention to this neglected but very necessary part of your business.

THE GERMAN SOFA.

It is the Seat of Honor For the Visitor
With the Biggest Title.

The stranger in Germany is always impressed by the importance of the sofa in marking social distinctions. Indeed, among Germans of the more comfortable class, those who live from generation to generation in the same house, every piece of furniture has its own history and makes its own associations, but it is always the sofa that is given the prominent place in a room. Before it usually stands a round or oval table.

Should there be callers at the average German house there ensues a certain dignified commotion. Should a caller, a woman of lower social standing than the mistress of the house, arrive she must take a chair, while the hostess sits alone on the sofa. Should the visitor be of higher degree, however, the matter will be otherwise decided.

This method of distinction reaches its highest point when there is a tea party, or kaffeeklatsch (coffee gossip), for then the oldest woman with the biggest title must sit on the sofa, and the next in rank occupies the place nearest her.

As the proudest usually arrives latest, a general stir is likely to take place, for if the Frau Doktorin, the wife of a physician or scholar, is sitting on the sofa she must vacate her position should a Frau Professorin appear. The Frau Majorin, or wife of a major, may be thoroughly enjoying the seat of honor, but she must yield it without hesitation when the Frau Generalin comes in. The whole company rise in such an event to do honor to the distinguished guest, and there must necessarily follow a general readjustment of places.

Neither unmarried men nor very young women can expect to enjoy the privilege of sitting on a German sofa.

The piece of furniture that stands next in honor to the sofa is the easy chair, which is sometimes called sorgenstuhl, or chair of cares. Should a German sit down to worry he must have a comfortable seat, that so important a mood may be endured with dignity. A common chair would not serve his purpose in the least. But the sorgenstuhl is, so to speak, for domestic and personal use only. The sofa is the part of the entire social framework never to be carelessly regarded.—New York Tribune.

BRAVERY IN BATTLE.

And the Terrors of War, Modern and of Other Times.

Much is written of the terrors of modern war. Little is written of the terrors of the wars of old. Yet it is doubtful if war today makes greater demands on human courage than war in the time of Grant, of Washington, of Turenne, of Caesar, of Alexander.

Consider a standup infantry fight in the days of the Revolution. After the preliminary cannonade and long distance musketry practice the two regiments marched toward each other in close ranks. At a given distance, frequently at thirty yards, there was a halt, a smashing volley and then a bayonet charge through the smoke.

Bullets those days were large and of soft lead, and the man who was hit

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, May 5.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ended May 3, were 1000 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 3100 hogs and 2300 calves. The offerings today amounted to 700 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 600 calves.

A much stronger feeling developed in the market for cattle this morning, owing to the smaller offerings and prices, as compared with this day week, show an advance of 25c to 35c per cwt. Sales of a few loads of choice steers, however, were made at $7 to $7.25 and good at $6.75 to $6.85 per cwt., while a few small lots of picked choice steers sold as high as $7.35 to $7.75, and choice bulls and cows at $6.25 to $6.50 per cwt.

Supplies of sheep and lambs coming forward continue very small and in consequence the trade is quiet with prices firmly maintained. A few lots of spring lambs brought from $5 to $8 each, as to size and quality. On account of the liberal receipts of calves of late prices are easier with sales of good to choice at $5 to $8 each. There was no change in the condition of the market for hogs, supplies being ample to fill all requirements and prices were unchanged with sales of selected lots at $10.40 to $10.50 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Cattle—Receipts, 18,000; market, strong; beefeves, $7.25 to $9.10; Texas steers, $6.80 to $7.85; western steers, $6.10 to $8; stockers and feeders, $4 to $5.25; cows and heifers, $6.50 to $9.

Hogs—Receipts, 40,000; market, active; light, $8.25 to $8.55; mixed, $8.15 to $8.50; heavy, $7.90 to $8.40; rough, $7.90 to $8.10; pigs, $6.50 to $8.45; bulk of sales, $8.35 to $8.45.

CHRIST ASCENDED AS HE DESCENDED

We Have Erred in Supposing His Flesh Ascended.

The Logos Descended—He Was Made
Flesh—Humbled Even Unto Death
—Sheol, Hades — He Was Raised
From the Dead a Spirit Being—
He Ascended as He Descended—Jesus Ascended to Glory.

68:18.

Pastor Russell declared that one of the serious errors engrained into the Christian faith is the supposition that Jesus is still a man. This wrong thought prevails especially amongst Premillenarians, and helps to turn many away from faith in the premillennial coming of Christ for the blessing of all the world. Many Christians perceive that a reign of Christ in the flesh would be inferior to a spiritual reign. Hence the general rejection of faith in the Second Coming of Christ and the establishment of His Kingdom.

He showed that all Christians firmly believe that Jesus was a spirit being before He came into the world. All believe that a spirit being is of a higher order than a human being, and that Jesus made a great stoop when He laid aside the glory of His prehuman condition to become "the Man Christ Jesus." Man is "a little lower than angels," even in his perfection.

The Pastor declared that surely no Bible student supposes that the Heavenly Father had permanently degraded His Son from a station higher than angels to one below them. Yet many Christians profess to believe this very thing. The ascension of Christ is claimed to prove it. How absurd to suppose that our Lord Jesus, accustomed to spirit conditions, and made flesh for a short period, could be otherwise than discommoded and seriously dishonored by the Father, if He has a body of flesh!

Ascends Where He Was Before.

Mistaken views respecting the word ascend have helped to confuse us. St. Paul, explaining our text, shows that the ascension of Jesus is to be considered in conjunction with His descending. (Ephesians 4:8-11.) He that ascended is the same that descended, thirty-four years before. Did the descending have reference to the kind of body? Surely not! Then the ascending has no reference to the kind of body.

The descending signified the humiliation, the leaving of spiritual glory, to be born of the flesh. The life of the Logos was transferred from the close ranks. At a given instance, frequently at thirty yards, there was a halt, a smashing volley and then a bayonet charge through the smoke.

Bullets those days were large and of soft lead, and the man who was hit went down. Over him tramped his comrades or the enemy, shooting and stabbing.

That was the type of infantry battles for 150 years. To minimize the courage needed to make a good soldier under such circumstances is to fly in the face of common sense.

Modern war requires a different type of courage from that needed of old. The old touch of elbows is lacking. The old feeling of companionship is gone. The modern soldier must be more alert, better taught, keener witted, than the old soldier of equal value. But it does not follow that the modern soldier is the braver man.

The men who fought at the "bloody angles" of Chickamauga and Spottsylvania, at Bunker Hill and Oriskany, at Rivoli, Zorndorf and Malplaquet, had no need to learn heroism in any modern school. It was theirs already.—Chicago Journal.

WHY A BASEBALL CURVES.

For the Same Reason That an Open Door Slams In a Draft.

All have wondered at some time or other why a door opened nearly to the limit will close when there is a draft or wind going through the opening. Certainly the wind does not get in behind the door and shove it, for the draft is through the opening.

The explanation of this fact lies in a fundamental principle of moving fluids and is the same principle that makes a baseball curve. Whenever there is a current in the air sidewise pressure is least in that current, so when the draft blows through the opening to the door the pressure on that side of the door is decreased, and consequently the pressure on the other side will start slowly to move the door, making it go faster and faster till the door swings into the draft itself and starts going in the direction of the draft. When it does so go in this direction of course the draft helps it along, because it is now not the sidewise motion that counts, but the forward motion.

When a ball is rotated in the air it carries around with it a good deal of air sticking to the sides. This, then, is the same thing as saying that a current of air is flowing round the rotating ball in the direction of rotation. Now, if a wind blows against that ball it is easy to see that the little rotating current will be with the wind on one side and against it on the other, so that on one side the velocity of the air will be increased and on the other diminished. So the greater pressure on the slow side will shove the ball against the low pressure on the fast side. Now, throwing a ball in the air is the same as making a wind blow against it, so if a ball be thrown and rotated at the same time it will necessarily curve.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Where All Are Equal.

Reform.

Reform is the work of reason slowly awakening from the lethargy of ignorance, gradually acquiring confidence in her own strength and ultimately triumphing over the dominion of prejudice and custom.

body. Surely now, then the ascending has no reference to the kind of body.

The descending signified the humiliation, the leaving of spiritual glory, to be born of the flesh. The life of the Logos was transferred from the spirit body to the body of the babe, that He might become "the Man Christ Jesus," and give Himself sacrificially for the sin of the world.

Similarly, the begetting of the Holy Spirit came to Jesus at His baptism, and for three and a half years it constituted Him a spiritual Priest, whose work was to "offer Himself." That offering ended at Calvary. When on the third day, the Father raised Him from the dead, it was the Priest who was raised to glory, honor and immortality—not the sacrificed human body. As it is written, "A body hast Thou prepared Me for the suffering of death." That fleshy body was never intended to be an incumbrance upon Jesus throughout eternity.

Jesus' sacrifice was finished at Calvary, as He said. He dieth no more, and therefore has no further use for the body of flesh. What became of it, the Pastor would not undertake to say. It was not seen in the tomb. But the soul, not the body, was raised to life. "Thou wilt not leave My soul in Sheol"—Hades—the tomb.

Why a Body of Flesh Was Used.

We must remember two things, said the Pastor. Followers of Jesus were required to have full faith: (1) That Jesus was the Logos, who had descended from the spirit plane to the human. (2) That He had died sacrificially, and that God raised Him from the dead.

Unless these two points were fully established, they could not continue as Jesus' disciples, acceptable with the Father, and capable of receiving the Holy Spirit. But they could not receive spiritual things until after the spirit-begetting at Pentecost. Hence their instructions must be along earthly lines.

If after His resurrection, Jesus had appeared to them as He did to Saul of Tarsus, what proof would they have that it was the same Jesus who had died? How could the message of His resurrection and ascension have been conveyed to their minds? Some ocular demonstration was necessary, to constitute a basis for faith. Therefore our Lord demonstrated to His disciples the fact that a great change had taken place.

The disciples were children in the School of Christ, learning a great lesson. To have crowded all lessons upon them at once would have been injurious. So Jesus had said. See John, 16:12, 13.

THE MAN WHO WOULD SLEEP.

Must Be In the Position of Not Caring Whether He Sleeps or Not.

People are very fussy about sleeping and still more fussy about not sleeping. A person who cannot sleep thinks that he is the most suffering piece of humanity in existence. Shakespeare punished most of his murderous characters and even his ghosts with insomnia. Sleep was, according to many of the poets and sonnet makers, the only cure for the rest of the world.

It seems a bit curious that it is only people wanting to use sleep as a method of transportation from themselves who cannot sleep. Children always sleep except when they do not want to and animals are never troubled with insomnia. Cats and dogs go to sleep when they haven't anything else to do. They are not trying to forget anything. Their consciences are clear. They do not know they are going to sleep—they just go.

The first best cure for insomnia is, therefore, the habit of being sufficiently satisfied with yourself when you are awake so that you need not care whether you sleep or not. The last best cure is the ability to be so interested in yourself when you are awake that you will prefer not to sleep.

John Muir tells in his autobiography of his difficulty in finding time to read and work for himself. His father was strict and John was sent to bed every night immediately after prayers. Persistently the boy insisted on snatching five minutes with his candle, until his father told him that if he must read he could set up early in the morning.

LONG CHINESE PLAYS

A CELESTIAL KINGDOM DRAMA LASTS FOR DAYS.

Pupils of the Imperial Pear Garden Begin When They Are Young and Have the Plays Drilled Into Them Until They Knew Fifty or Sixty—Actor Is Still a Rogue and a Vagabond.

"Velly good! Me likee muchee! But—so short!"

Such was the verdict of a "heathen Chinee" who recently visited Sir George Alexander's celestial production, "Turandot," now playing in London. When it was pointed out to him that the performance had lasted the full three hours customary in this country, he gave a contemptuous sniff, and remarked that in his native land plays often took, not three hours, but three days! The Chinese, it will be seen, take their drama just as seriously. The Siamese are even more enthusiastic, their performances sometimes extending over two months each!

It will readily be realized that the lot of the Chinese player is not a happy one. To act in a play that lasts several days, with intervals only for food and sleep, requires the constitution of several horses. And, for all their labors, the pupils of the Imperial Pear-Garden—as actors are called in China—get more kicks than ha'-pence.

Generally, they begin their careers as children, being hired out by their parents to the managers. Beginning work when they are still too young to read, they have their parts instilled into them by word of mouth; so that you will often find quite old actors who have from fifty to sixty plays at their fingers' ends, but cannot make out a line of print. That their youthful instruction in the histrionic art is no light matter may be gathered from the fact that in most contracts there is a clause to the effect that the parents cannot claim compensation from the managers when the stage-training of the children leads to their being whipped to death!

their drama may be gleaned fact that in the stage acts dramas not a detail is omitted. They leave out all the acts ever, women's parts being done by male performers.

If the Chinese expect action, they do not expect it. "Staging" a play is a affair in the empire of the Dragon. If the scene is a of the attendants comes a green branch to a chair there you are! Microbes in Your Scalp

Authorities say that a microbe causes baldness. If you are losing hair try our remedy at our risk.

Professor Unna, of Germany, and Dr. Sabouraud, the great French Dermatologist, claim that a microbe causes baldness, and their theory has been verified by eminent scientists. This microbe destroys the hair follicles, in time causing the scalp pores to close and the scalp to become shiny. Then, it is believed nothing will revive the growth. If treated before this occurs, baldness may be overcome.

We know of nothing that has given such universal satisfaction in treating the scalp and hair as Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. It has been designed after long study to overcome the cause of falling hair as discovered by Prof. Unna, Dr. Sabouraud and other scalp and hair specialists, and we believe it will do more than anything else can to remove dandruff and stop falling hair; and if any human agency can promote a new growth of hair it will do that, too.

We want you to make us prove it. We will pay for a month's treatment of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic used during a trial, if you will use it according to directions, and are not thoroughly satisfied. When we will do this, you surely should not hesitate to at least try it.

Start the treatment today. Your mere request will get your money back if you want it. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00.

John prayed, not for sleep, but that he might wake up before his father called him, no easy thing for a boy who worked all day in the fields. He did wake up and when he crept down to the kitchen it was just one o'clock, leaving five hours for himself, five hours in which he could do exactly what he wanted to do. He did not think of the loss of sleep. He had found five hours and he found five hours every night after that.

It is he who gets sleepy that should complain. The man who cannot sleep can do so many other things.

How To Be Agreeable.

The only way to be agreeable and sweet is to avoid being disagreeable. The first act in the play of self improvement problem is to be as civil to home folk as you would be to strangers. Chopin's Last Pupil Plays.

The last surviving pupil of the great Chopin gave a concert recently in Paris to save his poor belongings from the sheriff. His name is Dr. Peru, and he is eighty-three years old. Sixty-five years ago he was one of the favorite pupils of the great composer.

The poor old man played fourteen pieces by Chopin as the master had taught them to him, and the audience was surprised and delighted with his beautiful performance. Eighty-three years old and his fingers as nimble as those of a girl of twenty.

Peru, despite his great age, is still making a scant living as a piano teacher in the workingmen's quarters.

When he is full grown, even though he becomes the Sir Herbert Tree of Pekin, the Chinese actor is always a rogue and vagabond in the eyes of society. Sometimes he makes as much as $2,500 a year; but he is still a thing to be despised. On every side the law insults him. One law forbids him to wear dresses of true silk or embroidered with gold thread. Another, which ranks him specially with barbers and slaves, declares that he may not marry a woman above his station. ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

Chief Features of the First Week of the Proudfoot Investigation Before the Privileges and Elections Committee.

1. Vital evidence affecting the circumstances surrounding the admitted receipt by Hon. W. J. Hanna of $500 from a Government contractor, not allowed by the Conservative majority on the Committee.

2. A letter bearing an essential connection with the case, written by L. E. C. Thorne, protege and adviser of Mr. Hanna, and his own arbitrator, not allowed to be admitted as evidence on an exhibit.

3. Conservatives on the investigating Committee, 29; Liberals, 7.

4. Howard Ferguson, Chairman of the Privileges and Elections Committee, was also the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee a couple of weeks ago when the blocking tactics forced the bringing of the Proudfoot charges to the floor of the House.

5. Steam-roller methods were so acute in the Privileges and Elections Committee, supposed to be investigating the charges against Sir James Whitney and Hon. W. J. Hanna, that the whole enquiry was turned into a circus and a farce and Mr. Proudfoot, H. H. Dewart, K. C., his counsel, and the Liberal minority on the Committee had no other course than to withdraw since the dice were loaded against them. They have definitely stated that fair play could not be obtained from the Committee.

6. Sworn evidence by L. E. C. Thorne that Mr. Hanna had told him if the Taylor charges were published he would probably or undoubtedly have to resign.

7. Both Sir James Whitney and Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., counsel for the accused, have admitted that Hon. W. J. Hanna received $500 from Taylor Scott and Company, Government contractors at the Central Prison. Sir James Whitney admits that he heard of this transaction. Not the slightest suggestion, however, was made that the Prime Minister ordered the money to be returned, nor is there any suggestion that the money was actually sent back.

8. Last year a big sensation was caused in the United States by the charge against Theodore Roosevelt, that he, when head of the Republican party, had received a campaign contribution from the Standard Oil Company. Roosevelt immediately produced copy of a letter showing that when he had heard that his campaign manager had received a contribution he himself at once ordered it to be returned.

9. The gagging process in the Committee was started after the damaging evidence given by L. E. C. Thorne. The Government was evidently thrown into a panic and took desperate measures to conceal further facts. This man Thorne admitted under oath that on Tuesday morning just before the opening of the investigation he had spent half an hour at the residence of the counsel for the accused, Wallace Nesbitt. Thorne was a Government witness and it was his testimony revealing Mr. Hanna's deep apprehension at the charges that clearly led to the steam-roller policy.

10. Conservative papers including the Toronto Telegram, Ottawa Citizen and Montreal Gazette, admitted and deplored the refusal of the Conservative majority on the Committee to allow a free and full investigation.

11. Not only did Counsel for Mr. Hanna and Sir James Whitney with the help of the majority, shut out statement to the effect that he had never known Maisonneuve except to meet him a couple of times when he was Secretary to Hon. Dr. Reaume and that he had had no communication with him at all. He showed conclusively that it was not Maisonneuve who was the source of the charges under investigation.

12. Hartley Dewart, Counsel for Mr. Proudfoot, issued a letter stating that on the first afternoon of the enquiry, Wallace Nesbitt had made a suggestion of settlement but that he, on behalf of his client, had not accepted the proposal.

CARE OF REAL LACE.

How To Clean These Rare Possessions Without Injury.

There are many women who possess among their treasures pieces of real lace which have become so soiled that they do not know what to do with them. Of course, a good many women like the brown color of old lace, thinking that it shows that it is real. Our great-grandmothers, who scorned the idea of wearing imitations of any sort, would have been pretty astonished at hearing that real lace would not wash. It was washed in their day just as we would wash our imitations, but as they always took infinite pains with their clear starching and bleaching, no doubt the lace came in for some of this care.

Some old lace is in such a frail condition that it would be unwise to attempt to clean it at home, and it should be sent to a good lace cleaner who would understand how to do it. Still, there is much of this that will come through the ordeal quite safely. The best plan, if the lace is not too soiled, is to dry clean it. Do not use naphtha or any spirit, for though this is very good, it has a tendency to weaken the already frail threads. Instead, procure three ounces of powdered magnesia. Place in a warm oven until very dry. (Leave the oven door open.) Lay a clean white cloth on a table or flat surface, and, spreading the lace flatly on this, sprinkle thickly with the dry powder. Fold the lace, taking care that the magnesia has reached every part. Lay a sheet of white paper over and then fold the cloth up over all. Place under a weight or between two mattresses and leave for five days. Then unfold and shake out the powder. The dirt will come away with it.

11. Not only did Counsel for Mr. Hanna and Sir James Whitney with the help of the majority, shut out essential evidence but he went still further and made a frantic effort to obscure the whole issue by fastening the responsibility of the Proudfoot charges on Harry Maisonville, Ex-Secretary for Hon. Dr. Beaume, who is said to have black-mailed Hon. Mr. Hanna. The Government press has shouted nothing but Maisonville. As a matter of fact it was not Maisonville who wrote the letter but Thorne, who at that time was a Government official and was the sole arbitrator in the dispute between the Taylor Scott Company and the Government in which $21,000.00 was awarded the Company. Firlinfoens of Lombardy.

At Brianza, in Lombardy, there exists a most curious band, all the members of which play the same kind of instrument, known as the "firlinfoens." This corresponds to what we know as "pan pipes" and is constructed of reeds fastened side by side, the bass pipes being often several feet long, while the others gradually decrease in size. The "firlinfoens"—as the players are called, after their instruments—are, as a rule ignorant of music, and they learn their tunes by heart—often from a gramophone. It is said that the pan pipe players experience all the sensations of intoxication after a march, due to their energetic blowing and the constant wagging of the head to and fro. The music, by the way, although curious at first, is not unpleasing.—Wide World Magazine.

"Carley's Aunt," at the Opera House one night on'y, Tuesday, May 13th.

Richard the Brazen

Copyright, 1906, by Moffat, Yard & Company.

"I promise," answered Bill Williams huskily. Then he opened the door, closed it after him and tiptoed softly across the room.

The father found himself in a bare walled little room that was scrupulously clean and neat. The shades were drawn, yet by the dim religious light he espied a bandaged form apparently asleep upon a narrow brass bed. The face of the patient was in shadow, yet the Texan felt instinctively that he had found his martyred son at last. For a moment he could not speak. His emotions choked him, while two great tears rose up and rolled unheeded down his weather beaten cheeks. He sank on his knees beside the bed, stretched out his trembling arms and murmured brokenly:

"My boy! My boy!"

The Earl of Croyland rolled over on his back and stared at the sobbing apparition in wonder struck amaze. In dropping into a doze he had forgotten to remove his monocle, which by years of habit remained tight set in his noble eye.

"Go way!" he muttered feebly. "Don't be a silly ass!"

Bill Williams still remained upon his knees, his mouth wide open, into which the two tears aforementioned trickled unheeded. He was too bewildered fully to realize his ridiculous position all at once. That he had traveled over 2,000 weary miles for the dubious pleasure of kneeling by the bedside of this glass eyed lunatic was a thought which at first refused to percolate through his stunned cerebrum. He returned the stare and answered, with a series of hoarse, inarticulate gasps:

"Wha—you! My son—you—eh? Who—who the devil are you?"

The earl drew the sheet about his neck, closed his eyes and turned on his pillow languidly.

"No card—in my—ah—nightshirt. I'm Richard Williams—San Antawneo—Texas. Get out!"

"You're a liar!" burst out the old man angrily, rising to his feet.

The Earl of Croyland pulled the bell above the head of his bed and waited in unruffled calm till the nurse appeared. He opened his eyes and pointed to his visitor.

"Er—show this odious person out. I wish to—er—sleep."

The girl stepped forward, laid a gentle hand upon the sufferer's forehead and whispered soothingly:

"There, there, Mr. Williams! Don't excite yourself. This gentleman is your father. Don't you know him?"

"Rot!" said the earl. "I haven't a father; been dead for fifteen years or I wouldn't be an earl—I mean—ah—it's dem nonsense!"

Are you Dickie's governor?"
"Yes," snapped the Texan. "I am. What of it?"

The Englishman lay back on his pillow and laughed. It was an American joke, but he saw through it. Bravo!

"O-h," he sputtered, "really, you know, 'pon my word, it's droll—ha, ha—dash me—immense, by Jove!"

"Stop it," commanded Bill Williams sternly and turned to the nurse in charge. "Just leave us for a few moments, will you? There; you needn't be afraid. Nothing is going to happen. This gentleman and I will talk the matter over between us calmly, and I'll leave in ten minutes."

"It's all right, nurse," the earl seconded; "leave us, please. I understand the situation, but hanged if it isn't ripping. All the way from Texas, eh? Ha, ha!"

The puzzled nurse departed, leaving the two incomprehensibles to themselves, and so soon as the door had been closed the elder of the lunatics demanded an immediate explanation. The Earl of Croyland gave it to him, wondering the while how this droll old party could fail to appreciate a joke of so clear and so excellent a quality. He told of his meeting with Richard, the automobile accident and his own craftiness in assuming his friend's name and why he did it. Croyland had never seen Richard's father while in Texas, for he had visited the son on the latter's own ranch while the boy and his father had been temporarily estranged.

"Oh, I say," he asked, "don't you think it was awfully cleavah of me to think of that on the spur of the moment, we might say, without any pre-conceived thought whatevah?"

"Brilliant," said Mr. Williams, with dry irony. "But let me tell you one thing, young man—it's a good thing that you're a cripple."

"Er—why?" asked the Briton vacantly.

"Why?" echoed the giant of the Lone Star State in genuine disgust. "Why? Because if you weren't one already it would take a bigger doctor's shop than this to patch you up. Who sent me those telegrams? Where's my son?"

"Don't know anything about either of 'em," the other responded carelessly, while he marveled at the Texan's show of spirit. "The last I saw of Dick he was going up to Irvington to call upon the Renwycks—Jacob Renwyck, ye know—millionaire and all that sort of thing."

"What?" gasped Mr. Williams. "My son gone to call on Jacob Ren—Drop it! Drop it! No nonsense now! What are you talking about?"

Lord Croyland explained, but the

First there was a well groomed, somewhat pompous, official looking Englishman, with a red face and white side whiskers, evidently a man of authority and importance. Next there was a tall, blond young woman, with a "ripping" figure, who expressed surprise that no vehicle was there to meet her. And finally there were an excited old farmer, a hard featured man in plain clothes—also with an official look—and a fussy little representative of a motor company, if one could judge by his cap and general automobile rig.

In despair of a carriage all of these walked slowly up the hill in the direction of Restmore, although in the fact that, save the farmer and the plain clothes official, each pursued his way alone, holding no communication with the others, was conclusive proof that their simultaneous arrival and their common destination were merely coincidences. Mr. Renwyck and his companions arrived long before the others. With the two detectives he went immediately into the library, where he met his wife and Mr. Corrigan. The safe was wide open, showing the tumbling contents just as they had been found when the door was unlocked two hours earlier by Uncle Michael. In utter silence the two sleuths made an examination, but beyond one tiny scratch near the keyhole of the inner door the safe showed no evidence of having been tampered with. Besides Mr. Renwyck, there was no one else who knew the combination except the old butler, who was confined to his bed with rheumatism in a small village several miles away and who was quite above suspicion anyway. Clearly, then, the thief had in some way learned the combination or else he was an experienced cracksmen.

On hearing of the robbery the first thought that flashed into Mr. Renwyck's mind was his curious meeting in the library with his English guest at 3 o'clock in the morning, with the window open and the burglar alarm turned off. The prowler's explanation had been quite simple. Mr. Renwyck had honestly striven to persuade himself that it was entirely satisfactory, although he could not drive away a sneaking suspicion that everything was not just right. In the light of present developments his mind recurred to this suspicion with added force. Then there was that draft which the earl had so inexplicably refused to sign after first offering to do so, a small matter in itself, yet coupled with the strange nocturnal wanderings of a gentleman who wished to seek for a book at a quarter past 8 o'clock in the morning—well, it troubled Mr. Renwyck not a little. All the way to Irvington he had turned the matter over in his mind, yet on meeting Lord Croyland on the front veranda he was forced to admit that the frank appearing young man looked as little like a burglar as himself.

Mr. Corrigan was the first to give his evidence. He explained about the tramp with a cast in his eye and told how he had first observed the man on the train coming from New York, then how the same man had come to Restmore begging. He offered to bet his brother-in-law a thousand dollars to five hundred that the cock eyed fellow was the robber, but Mr. Renwyck coldly declined to take the wager.

Mr. Corrigan described the appearance of the man with enthusiastic mil-in him, nothing else matters.

At this stage of the process was quite a commotion on porch, due to the arrival of visitors. Harriet and Imogene stood and greeted Miss Semple briefly, while Mr. Renwyck to the door, impatient at the for interruption.

"Sir," questioned the pomposist gentleman, who had arrived minutes after the lighter foot lady, "am I correct in assuring that is Mr. Jacob Renwyck?"

Mr. Renwyck bowed.

"H'm! My card," went on. "I am, as you see, Sir Rodewich, British ambassador at ton. I have written repeated letters of most urgent business to me who I learn has bee at this charming home, but and telegrams have elicited Humph! I abide, sir, to th Croyland. Does he chance with you?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Renwyck. "Come in. I must apologize f set state, but the fact is we discovered a serious robbery. seated, Sir Rodney. Lord was here a moment ago. I for him."

"I shall be obliged, I'm sure to disturb you under the stances, but it's really most i you know, and—"

"Not at all," said Mr. Renwyck teously. "James," he called tler, "send some one to Lord with this card."

"Yes, sir," answered James. I see him on the lawn, sir. ining now."

Richard, having spied Miss coming up the path, had moved out upon the lawn in postpone the inevitable disc long as possible. He saw her Harriet and Imogene up t then he turned once more to house. At the steps he was s a farmer, the hard feature and the fussy little mechan vidual who seemed to hav forces on the way.

"That's one of 'em now," clared the rustic, pointing a s ger at Richard. "I recognize cer. He was there all right."

"What's this—what's this?" ed Mr. Renwyck, hastening o sound of the excited voice.

"It's all right, Mr. Renwyck, the fussy little man, touching "I think we can settle it wit trouble whatever. Is this L land?"

"Yes, it is," answered the master of Restmore. "What I fuss about? It is very ann have you people coming here time. What do you want?"

your father. Don't you know him?"

"Rot!" said the earl. "I haven't a father; been dead for fifteen years or I wouldn't be an earl—I mean—ah—it's dem nonsense!"

The nurse looked toward Bill Williams appealingly, indicating by a cautious gesture that he would better leave the patient for the present, but the visitor was otherwise disposed.

"Go way!" he muttered feebly. "Don't be a silly ass!"

His face had turned a livid purple, and the flow of speech which had stuck in his throat now burst forth in a furious torrent:

"Good God!" he roared. "Do you think I ever had a thing like that for a son? He's not my boy, I tell you. What, this double jointed son of a one eyed cayuse. My Dick! Look here, young woman, I'll put the sheriff on to this asylum of yours! Oh, I know you!" he cried, excitedly pointing a shaking finger at the astonished earl. "You have swindled me. It was a trick to get me away from Texas while some of your black hearted confederates went for my deep water harbor bill! You and Jacob Renwyck—that's it! I see it now, but I'll fix you yet. I start back for God's country as soon as I find my boy, and we'll see who's running the freeborn legislature of the great state of Texas, by gad! You!"

"Oh, Mr. Williams," the nurse broke in excitedly, "please, please be reasonable! Listen. It is some dreadful mistake—some similarity of names—some, oh, can't you see that we are not to blame? Calm yourself, for the sake of the patient—for your own sake—for my sake! There, now! Let's talk it over quietly and see if we cannot straighten out the tangle." She turned to the earl. "This gentleman," she said, indicating the visitor, "has traveled all the way from Texas to see his son, whom he learned had been hurt and brought to this hospital. Perhaps there are two Richard Williamses, and a very natural mistake may have arisen!"

"O-h!" said the Earl of Croyland, a light of understanding slowly piercing the fog of his intelligence. "By Jove!

"What!" gasped Mr. Williams. "My son gone to call on Jacob Ren—Drop it! Drop it! No nonsense now! What are you talking about?"

Lord Croyland explained, but the very fact that Richard had dared to communicate with Jacob Renwyck, even to oblige a friend, put the father in a new fury.

"Of course," said the earl, "he couldn't possibly be out there now, but you might phone and make certain. I dare say they have a telephone."

"No, sir," stormed the old gentleman, walking up and down excitedly. "No more long distance lies for me. I've had enough of that already. I'll just go up to Irvington myself and pick up his trail. I want my boy, I tell you, and I'm going to find him. If he isn't at Irvington my trip won't be wasted after all. I'll have the satisfaction of wringing Jacob Renwyck's neck. I'll bet he's responsible for those wires and the whole thing. Where's the infernal place, and how do you get to it?"

Lord Croyland, who was not particularly interested in Mr. Renwyck's neck, gave directions cheerfully, and the distracted father started on his way. When he had gone the nervous nurse came once more to the patient's side.

"Mr. Williams," she asked, "is there anything that I can do for you?"

"Yes," lisped the earl, with a languorous smile. "I'm not at home to any one else to day unless Miss Semp-ton calls, and now just open the window, will you, my dear, and let the—ah—sulphur out? A most disagreeable old party—really."

CHAPTER XXII.

MR. BILL WILLIAMS took the first train for Irvington, settled himself with a long black cigar in the smoking car and began to churn his brains for answers to many perplexing questions. That his enemies were trying to eucrue him was as clear as day. His son might have sent one wire of warning, but why a dozen? That was Jacob's fine Italian hand. If Richard was at liberty, why had he not written? Why had he left his baggage at the St. Regis without returning? How dared he go to Irvington? Where had he gone thereafter? Where was he now? The old gentleman gave it up and chewed the end of his cigar in savage impatience. Of one thing only was he certain—he would get on Richard's trail and follow it to the end.

On reaching Irvington he hurried to the telegraph office and sent the following dispatch to his representative at Austin, Tex.:

Watch harbor bill. Skin game on. Learn when legislature will adjourn and answer.

BILL WILLIAMS.

Irvington, N. Y.

There was some considerable delay in sending his wire, which he further lengthened by telephoning to his New York representatives, making an appointment with them for later during the day. As he had plunged straight for the telegraph office, he neither saw nor was seen by Mr. Jacob Renwyck when that gentleman, accompanied by two plain clothes men, got off the rear car of the same train, rushed across the platform, jumped into a waiting surrey, the only carriage that happened to meet that train, and drove rapidly away. Nor did he hear several people inquire of the station agent for walking directions to Mr. Renwyck's place.

five hundred that the cock eyed fellow was the robber, but Mr. Renwyck coldly declined to take the wager.

Mr. Corrigan described the appearance of the man with enthusiastic minuteness, at which the foremost of the detectives smiled an oily smile.

"Well, by gad," he exclaimed indelately, "if that doesn't hit Jack Bibbs, then I'm a Dutchman! If Jack's got your shinners, Mr. Renwyck, you'd better whistle for 'em."

"Why?" asked Mr. Corrigan.

"Because he's the slickest crook in seven states," returned the sergeant, nodding vigorously. "He's a hundred and fifty miles away by this time, sure."

"Um!" said Uncle Michael. "If you had listened to me, Jake, instead of trying to be humorous, you!"

"Oh, shut up, will you?" growled Mr. Renwyck. "This is no time for recrimination. You'd argue the sun, moon and stars out of the sky together if you found any one to listen to you."

"Now, who ever saw sun, moon and stars in the sky at the same time?" queried the irrepressible Michael.

"There you go," retorted his brother-in-law. "Your story of the tramp is just as absurd now as it was in the beginning. Come; let's get down to business. Call everybody in. These officers will question every inmate of the house. Gentlemen," he said, turning to the detectives, "you have my permission to proceed in any manner which seems best to you. We are entirely in your hands."

"All right, sir," answered the detective sergeant, whose name was Flint. "We'll take the servants first."

Richard was crossing the hall in a vain search for Harriet when he chanced to overhear this last remark. His heart went down again. If Woolsey Bills were questioned it would mean far more than turning a guilty villain over to the authorities. He, the master, would be forced to explain also, and, taken in conjunction with his own meeting with Mr. Renwyck in the library, the outcome would be ghastly, to say the least. Yet he must act on the detective's suggestion at once.

"Shall I send for my man?" he asked of Mr. Renwyck, who at that moment came out into the hall.

"No," said his host; "we'll take my own servants first. James," he called to a sphinxlike butler in the hall, "tell all the servants to come into the library—all of them. Understand?"

"Yes, sir," answered James, with a solemn bow, and departed on his mission.

Richard's heart went up again. He had a slight reprieve. It would last perhaps twenty minutes, yet much might happen in that span of time. He wondered idly if they would put handcuffs on him, but dismissed the thought in his determination to pay for the stolen diamonds, inasmuch as he felt responsible for Woolsey Bills. When the time came he would confess like a man and take his medicine. He would be denounced. It would be dramatic, like the play of the "Man and the Bird," only the name would be changed. It would now be the "Man and the Jailbird." How simple to have opened that library window, while Bills went out into the night, boarded a freight and deposited the plunder in New York! The Texan was innocent, of course, but would other people think so? Yet she would. There was comfort in that. If she believed

CHAPTER XXIII.

RICHARD was not angry at Mr.
Renwyck's accusation, false though it was. He had expected it all along and had steelled himself to bear it without the turning of an eyelash. This would seem to be his opportunity for confessing his deception, yet now he was checked by the part the two young ladies had played on the previous night. To make a clean breast of it would be to involve them also, and even though it would clear him personally he could not entertain the thought for a single instant.

Yet when Sergeant Flint, the detective, put forth his hand the blood of the Texan seethed into action. There was no evidence of anger, no movement to resist the law, but in his cold gray eye there came a warning glint, which was further backed by a calm,
dispassionate tone.

"Don't do that, sonny," he said in words that carried conviction. "There'll be no trouble. But hands off!" Once more he turned quietly to his host.
"Now, Mr. Renwyck, kindly explain your charge."

"It is scarcely necessary," answered that gentleman in undisguised contempt, "but if you wish to be further unmasked before this company I have no objection, I assure you. You entered my house under false pretenses and with an assumed name. By your own confession you have abused our trust and hospitality. I find you in my library at 3 o'clock in the morning, fully dressed, while the window is wide open and the burglar alarm switched off. Can you account for this extraordinary proceeding on the part of a guest in a gentleman's house?"

"I can," he answered calmly. Harriet made an involuntary movement at this, but Richard, whose eyes never lost sight of her, in spite of all that occurred, checked her with a motion of his hand. "As I told you, I had come downstairs for a book. The night was warm, and through the window came a very grateful breeze. If I wished to open a window, why should I alarm
the entire household with a furious clatter from a big brass gong?"

There were murmurs of approval from several persons among the company, especially the ladies, but this only made Mr. Renwyck more firm in his just convictions.

"Nonsense," he cried, "utter bosh!
Do you mean to tell me that you will swear in court—as you certainly will have to—that you opened that library window merely to let in fresh air?"

"There was no other reason," the Texan answered imperturbably.

Mr. Renwyck tried another tack.

"Was there any other man with you in the library last night?"

ed her, once going so far as to stop an exclamation with a pretty hand across a prettier mouth. What was it Miss Renwyck seemed so eager to tell which Miss Chittendon seemed equally determined to withhold?

At Mr. Renwyck's order to the detectives great excitement filled the room. Sergeant Flint and his subordinate closed upon the Texan, and for a moment it seemed that trouble was inevitable.

"Stop!" said Richard. The tone was incisive, and somehow the wondering company gave obedience. "Mr. Renwyck," he went on quietly, "you have called me a thief before many witnesses. You will be required to answer for this to me! As to the manner of that answer you know enough of men from Texas to—"

This time Harriet broke away from Miss Imogene, whitening to the lips and stretching out her hand to the group beneath her.

"Texas?" she cried. "Then you are—"

"I am," smiled Richard, "and don't you say a single word. We'll get out of this 'mill' too."

Miss Renwyck sank back against the balustrade, trembling from head to foot, while her color came and went,
as she stared in silence at the cowboy of her dreams. In her heart she had known it from the first, yet now she recognized the fact that she loved the pseudo Englishman even if he had not turned out to be her hero of the plains.
How splendid he looked as he faced the company, striving to shield two helpless girls by taking the blame of the robbery upon himself! For her sake he was being branded as a thief, but this thing should not be!

"Imogene," she whispered, "I must tell. I must, I must!"

But Imogene clung to her appealingly.

"Oh, don't!" she pleaded. "Cornelius will be so angry at me. Look at him glowering now! Just wait a little while. I shall die of shame. Please, please!"

Harriet bit her lip. It was too late now, anyway, for her lover was speaking again, and she did not wish to miss a word.

"Gentlemen," he was saying, "Mr.
Renwyck has accused me of a crime.
Perhaps he is justified in connecting me with the loss of his valuable property; but, on the other hand, I appeal to you as level headed, thinking men.
His evidence is purely circumstantial."

"Can you prove your innocence?"
sneered the financier.

"Unfortunately, no, nor am I compelled to do so by the laws of the land," returned the Texan quietly.
"But I can weld as strong a chain around any member of this household whom you choose to select."

"Done!" retorted Mr. Renwyck angrily. "Make the choice yourself. Go on."

"Very well," laughed Richard, "I will. Mr. Renwyck, I select you!"

"Me!" stormed the millionaire, starting back in genuine astonishment.

"Preposterous!"
There was a chuckle of delight from a distant corner, and Mr. Renwyck had no trouble at all in fixing it upon Brother Michael. Richard stood with his feet slightly apart, his hands in his pockets, while he began to rock forward and backward on his heels and toes. The humor of the situation was coming back again.

"This isn't the Earl of Croyland, Mr. Renwyck."

took a backward step; then he jerked his hand from the other's grasp and turned to Mr. Renwyck.

"Er—bless my soul," he spluttered,
"is this the—the eh?"

"The Earl of Croyland, of course," answered Mr. Renwyck, striving to control his growing impatience at all these interruptions.

"Of course," said Richard solemnly.
"Didn't you just recognize me yourself?"

"Fellow! Chap! This isn't the Earl of Croyland, Mr. Renwyck. He's an impostor, sir. You are being grossly deceived."

If a lyddite shell had been exploded on the lawn of Restmore it could not have created a more profound sensation. There were several startling exclamations, short and sharp, then a sudden silence, which finally the farmer broke.

"Dog my cats!" he roared exultantly.
"Knew he was tryin' to woosie us!"

"Come into the house," said Mr.
Renwyck sternly, "all of you. We'll git this matter to the bottom."

The assemblage which gathered in the large wide hall was indeed a mixed collection. Besides the haughty
Miss Schermerly and the dismal Mr.
Van der Awe, there were one wondering English gentleman, two detectives,
a constable, several more or less terrified servants, a farmer, an automobile agent, a lawyer, a financier and a scapegoat. This is not counting Mrs.
Renwyck, who found herself in a frightened state of agitation which Miss Schermerly could not soothe, nor Miss Chittendon, who was worse off;

nor Miss Renwyck, nor Miss Sempson, who was displaying her "ripping" figure from a point of vantage on the stairs between the other two.

"What would you like to know first?" asked Richard in an exasperatingly level voice.

"Are you an Englishman?"

"An Englishman! Well, rather not," sneered the ambassador.

"No, thank God!" came the fervid answer. "An American and proud of it!"

Sir Rodney's face flamed redder than before. So did Miss Harriet's, but hers from a very different cause.

"Oh, I say!"—interposed the ambas- sador.

"Him English!" laughed the farmer. "Gosh!"

"I knew there was something wrong," began Miss Schermerly in malicious triumph. "I always thought his man- fers had not the repose that"—

"Silence!" commanded Mr. Renwyck, glaring about him savagely. Then he turned once more to Richard. "You have imposed on my hospitality, sir. Who are you?"

"Now, whom do you think I am?" asked the Texan, with a most engaging smile.

There was silence for a moment; then Miss Sempson spoke:

"Pardon me, Mr. Renwyck, but I think I can supply that information. He is—or says he is—Peter Wilson, chauffeur for the Layton Motor company. He learned to drive a car on a broncho."

"On a broncho!" exclaimed Miss Har- ret, to whom an illumination was dawning.

"He isn't," spoke up Mr. Parker promptly, "asking your pardon, ma'am, for contradicting a lady. I belong to the Layton Motor company, and I never laid eyes on this man before in my life."

"Tain't so!" shouted the farmer. "He is Peter Wilson; I recall it now. I heard him say so himself. The lady hear'd him, too, an' she'll back me up."

"Officer," said Mr. Renwyck, with quiet ferocity, "oblige me by putting that man out of my house."

Sergeant Flint complied willingly, and for the balance of the conclave the rustic looked on and listened from afar. When quiet was restored Mr. Renwyck returned to the matter in hand.

"You admit, then, to having sailed under false colors?"

"I do," said Richard equably. "Is your name Peter Wilson?"

"No."

Mr. Renwyck's face went red, then deathly pale. He had heard enough. In the excitement of the exposure he had lost sight for the moment of the robbery. He pointed a shaking finger at the Texan and exclaimed in a tone which was loud enough for all to hear: "Where are my diamonds?"

"I give it up," said Richard cheerfully.

"That's what they want you to do," interrupted Mr. Van der Awe, with a sudden burst of intelligence, which surprised everybody.

"You've got them, my man," said Mr. Renwyck. "Officers, arrest him!"

"Father!"

Shrill and anguished came the cry, and the desperate Texan's warm blood tingled at the sound. To him it meant

"There was no other reason," the Texan answered imperturbably.

Mr. Renwyck tried another tack.

"Was there any other man with you in the library last night?"

"There was."

Imogene gasped, and Harriet put an arm around her soothingly.

"Ha!" cried the financier triumphantly. "Perhaps you will turn state's evidence. Well, who was this other man?"

"You," smiled Richard. "I remember you perfectly on account of your costume, which was—er—quaint in the extreme."

Uncle Michael broke into a jovial roar, while a snigger of amusement rippled among the other listeners. The culprit had scored a point, but it only served to put Mr. Renwyck in a warmer rage.

"Officers," he cried, "do your duty! I accuse this man—he's a thief!"

Miss Harriet stepped forward, a crimson spot glowing on either cheek, but Imogene held tightly to her arm and dragged her back. Mr. Van der Awe was in a state which bordered on despair. He also had been watching Imogene and Harriet, and he saw that they were far more interested in the proceedings of the case than their silence warranted. Three times Miss Harriet had started forward, but her whimpering friend had always detainhis feet slightly apart, his hands in his pockets, while he began to rock forward and backward on his heels and toes. The humor of the situation was coming back again.

"Gentlemen," he said, "and ladies, too, if you will allow me—this is merely for the sake of argument—our honorable host, for whom, believe me, I have the utmost respect and admiration, has unfortunately placed himself in a very ugly light. To begin with, he is involved in a certain financial scheme, the details of which I am not at liberty to disclose. Suffice it to say it requires a vast amount of capital. That Mr. Renwyck is pinched for money is proved by the fact that night before last he urged me to place $100,000 in his enterprise."

"What!" gasped Mr. Renwyck. "Why, sir—why?"

"Wait!" said Richard sharply. "I have the floor." Again he turned to the company. "I declined to invest this amount of money for reasons of my own, though my host was much annoyed therewith."

INTRODUCING KUDZU.

Government Thinks It's a Valuable Addition to Our Stock of Plants.

The following description of kudzu, the valuable new forage plant, is given by the United States department of agriculture:

"Kudzu is a large leaved, very rapid growing woody, leguminous vine, a native of Japan. It succeeds well in every part of the United States where it has been tried, and where the summers are warm it grows with great luxuriance. It is a most excellent vine for arbors to produce a tropical effect by growing over low trees. In Japan it is grown on rough, rocky land or steep hillsides that cannot be cultivat-

Photograph by United States department of agriculture.

KUDZU VINE

In this country it should also be tested on lands too poor to be cultivated with profit. Kudzu, being a legume, will add nitrogen to the soil in addition to the forage it produces. Kudzu may be used either for pasturage or as green food, though hay can be made of it. It will probably be best used as pasture, and it is desirable to have two such pastures, to be browsed alternately."

A gentleman who has been growing it in Florida several years gives his experience with it as follows: "After several years' experience with the kudzu vine I consider it the best forage plant to tide the farmer and stock raiser over the long, hot, dry summer, as well as the rainy season."

crimson clover, vetch and rye on every square foot I can get planted.

"Then I shall use lime for a sweetener, for we now can afford the lime a little time to work. Next summer when I am putting in a second and third crop on the same ground I shall probably use blood and bone meal.

"Don't misunderstand me. I think chemical fertilizers are bully for old, wornout land, but it would be like 'carrying coals to Newcastle' to put them on virgin soil.

"The craze for chemical fertilizer has gone too far. There are places where they have put it on so heavy (with the theory that if one ton is good two tons will be better) that they have chemical laboratories, not farms. All chemical fertilizing is 'lazy man's way.' He claims he will not have weeds, so will save cultivation. Weeds are the farmer's best friends. They force him to cultivate, and lack of cultivation is the crime of modern farming. If they'll pile some old manure on that ground now and so liberate through decomposition the various component parts of the chemical fertilizers they will have farms again."

SMOKING OUT THE BUGS.

Fumigation a Good Way of Getting Rid of Henhouse Pests.

Fumigation is a means of reaching germs and insect life in the air of the room and in the cracks and crannies of the woodwork, says the American Cultivator. The house or room should be tightly closed and all fowls excluded during fumigation.

A simple method is to burn the sulphur candles now sold at stores dealing in poultry supplies. The fumes of brimstone may also be produced by burning in a metallic basin (such as an old iron kettle) a number of rags previously soaked in melted sulphur.

Sulphur may be mixed with a little alcohol or kerosene oil and burned, or it may be sprinkled upon live coals placed in a chafing dish. The house or room should be kept closed for several hours and then opened as thoroughly as possible to allow the wind to drive out any remaining trace of poisonous gas.

In fumigating by burning substances be careful not to set fire to the building. Remember also that in most cases the substances which are used are poisonous to human life and to fowls. Carelessness in their use or in leaving them about where chick or child can get at them may have dire results.

How to Preserve Eggs.

Dip fresh eggs, one at a time, in hot melted paraffin, enough to cover the egg. Take out immediately with wire tongs made for that purpose of baling wire, let paraffin harden and dip quickly again, reversing egg. Let cool. Wrap each egg separately in waxed or paraffin paper. Wrap carefully, so as not to scratch or break the coating. Pack cold in tin fruit cans and seal with paraffin, which excludes the air. Eggs so canned air tight will keep several months, the paraffin having closed the pores in the shell. Keep in a cool place and label can, "Handle with care."—Farm and Fireside.

Handy Barn Door Latch.
Every farmer or horseman knows

FARMER—BUSINESS MAN.

Every farmer should have some place that he calls his office. It may be a secretary in the corner of the sitting room, it may be a small room in the granary or perhaps a part of the milk house. But, whatever it is, there he should have his accounts, farm records and valuable papers. More system is needed on most farms. — Farm and Fireside.

Give Yourself a Weigh.

Scales are as essential on the modern farm as the mower, binder or manure spreader. To the farmer who desires to know if his business is paying him the profits it should the weighing machine must be used much more often than the mower, binder or manure spreader. The farm scale is especially valuable when products are sold from the farm, says W. M. Jardine, head of the agronomy department at the Kansas Agricultural college.

Keep Only the Paying Kind.

Sell two of the boarder cows and put in one that pays a profit. Sell the old gelding and put on a mare that will raise a colt worth one-half to one-third of her purchase price at weaning time.

FARMING HINTS.

It does not pay to devote high priced land for long periods to pasture and the production of hay.

Low, wide tired steel wheels will give any farmer better equipment for his work. Under all conditions of the field and nearly all conditions of the road it is estimated that broad tired steel wheels pull lighter than the narrow tires.

More money can be made feeding horses for market than with any other class of stock feeding. There is a constant demand for good draft horses, and the average farmer should keep draft mares and have a few young horses to sell each year.—Farm and Fireside.

The location of a garden is more important than the soil. Sunlight we must have, but the soil we can make. We can make it by bringing in new loam, sand and fertility, combining them to meet the ideal, but sunlight is determined by the buildings and trees.—Country Gentleman.

SEED CORN.

If each farmer of a community were to furnish a sample of his seed corn, to be planted by the side of other samples in a field of even soil, there would be some surprises when the crops were harvested. Many a farmer handicaps himself by refusing to believe that his neighbor has a better strain or variety.—National Stockman and Farmer.

several years' experience with the kudzu vine I consider it the best forage plant to tide the farmer and stock raiser over the long, hot, dry summer, as well as the rainy season."

GOOD HORSE SENSE.

The horse is man's universal motor, without which he could not have attained to his present degree of civilization—could not even have emerged from savagery—yet he is so familiar that he is not appreciated until he is lost. No other animal is so important to human welfare, and his improvement by the use of good sires should be the care of every farmer as a mere matter of economy.—Kansas Farmer.

Use of Commercial Fertilizers Discussed For and Against.

Mr. Fullerton, who, with his wife, is the "head and front" of the Long Island experiment farms, discourses as follows on the use, or, rather, abuse, of commercial fertilizers. In answer to the question, "Aren't you ever going to use fertilizer, Mr. Fullerton?" he said: "Bless your souls, yes. Didn't I use fertilizer when I plowed that rye under? Next fall I am going to put on about ten tons to the acre of manure again, and I am going to turn under

Handy Barn Door Latch.

HIS CHANCE.

The Tariff Talking Parent & Where He Wanted His Clergyman says that he witnessed some amulets in connection with ceremonies, but that none was quite so upsetting to all concerned as that carried in a wedding of his own.

When the ceremony had completed and the usual congratulation offered the pastor the assemblage and said:

"We have all known the people. We have seen them from children, and now that entered the holy state of matrimony, perhaps some of their old friends may have some speech to say to them."

For a moment there was no response to this suggestion. Then from the front emerged the father of the bride who delivered himself as follows:

"I ain't certain that I can think important to what has been said. Then, after a solemn and unable glance about him which his embarrassment, his eye finally fell upon a neighbor, a prominent, who would never give the old man's views on certain things. The face brightened, and in an instant he exclaimed:

"But this seems a good chance which ought not be neglected. That Blank is here, and I should say a few words on the subject of tariff reform!"—Harper's Magazine.

Suspected.

It was while on maneuvers a soldier was being tried for the theft of a chicken on prohibited grounds.

"Look here, my man," said commanding officer to the犯人, "are you certain this is the man who's bird? Will you swear to him?"

"No, I won't do that," replied the man, "but I will say he's the suspect o' doing it."

"That's not enough to condemn him," retorted the C. O., comouflaged. What raised your suspicion?"

"Well, sir, replied the sturdy as he slowly mopped his forehead with his handkerchief, "it was this way on my property with a gun he held the gun go off; then I putting the chicken into his bag and it didn't seem sense, no think the bird committed suicide."

FOR SOWING COWPEAS.

Simple Homemade Contrivance That Does the Work Well.

Here you will find a sketch, taken from Farm and Fireside, of a knack to put on cultivator wheels to sow cowpeas and such, as you lay by.

(Fig. 1) is a wheel. B is boards on which dishpan C is fastened with screws around rim. DD are holes one-half inch from edge of pan, from which peas drop as wheel goes around.

Fig. 2 represents boards on which pan is fastened. A is hole which slips over the hub of wheel and also used to fill pan. BBB are wires through boards, which are fastened to spokes to hold all to place. As wheel goes around the seed scatters out between the corn rows. One of these should be on each wheel.

Skip one row each time until once over, then take off and plow remaining rows.

For small peas six and one-half inch holes in pan fifteen inches in diameter on forty-four inch wheel will sow about one bushel to the acre. A heavy washer inside of pan will keep holes from clogging.

THOSE FERTILIZER FIGURES.

They Tell How Much Nitrogen, Phosphoric Acid and Potash You Buy.

An occasional question comes regarding the meaning of the numerals used in designating a fertilizer. It would be well if no other designation ever were used, as it calls attention to the composition of the fertilizer and that is the one important thing.

The first number gives the percentage of nitrogen in the fertilizer, the second gives the phosphoric acid and the third the potash. When a fertilizer is designated in this way one's mind is drawn directly to the actual content of plant food.

We want to know how many pounds of each plant food constituent we are getting when we buy a fertilizer and would prefer to use 100 pounds of a 4-8-10 fertilizer rather than 200 pounds of a 2-4-5, because we would be getting the same amount of plant food by handling only 100 pounds of material.—National Stockman and Farmer.

CHIFFON CORSET COVER.

A New Underblouse Made From Two Thicknesses of Thin Fabric.

After women were insured to the idea that a transparent blouse called for a thin and fancy corset cover they began to look about to see what fabric could be used to the best advantage. They tried silk, but it was not satisfactory, as it gave too definite an impression of what it was beneath the blouse and looked like lining.

It was in this search that some one stumbled on fish pink chiffon cloth as an admirable fabric, which is almost as cobwebby as chiffon itself, but has better wearing qualities, for it is woven out of stronger thread.

When it was made up in a simple manner it had no character. It did not really conceal the white chemise beneath, and it did not give any definite color to the blouse above. Flowered ribbon was used in small bows or as a band run through long buttonholes that were placed around the figure, but this idea proved too colorful and did not look especially well under all kinds of blouses.

Then came the inrush of those fancy little roses which the great masses of women do not yet know how to use and which the majority think belong only to picture frames and bureau ornaments, but they were found speedily satisfactory as an ornament to this pink chiffon corset cover, and at present this is the accepted idea.

This underblouse is made from two thicknesses of material in order that it may not be too transparent, for we must draw the line somewhere, and it is gathered into a scanty ruffl of thin white lace. Over the shoulders go half inch straps of pink satin ribbon which end in front in flat rosettes made of three roses with green leaves.

The natty little neck bow illustrated forms an attractive finish for a blouse waist. It is made of small lengths of black velvet and satin ribbon, one end making and household departments of the Pictorial Review:

The most frequent method of adulterating milk is by adding water. To detect water in milk a lactometer is necessary.

Place about a pint of milk in a wide mouthed jar. Take the temperature. If the milk is about 60 degrees the lactometer may be inserted. Be sure the lactometer floats in the milk. Read the lactometer. The scale should be somewhere between 1.027 and 1.033. If the scale is less than 1.027 and the milk is watery blue water has been added. If the reading is less and the color of the milk is creamy it may be unusually rich milk. No decision should be made until the tests for coloring have been made, for it may be watered milk which is colored. If the scale reads over 1.033 the milk has not been watered, but it has been skimmed.

The second test for milk is for artificial colors. These are of two kinds—coal tar dye, which is usually harmful, and annatto, a vegetable substance, which is harmless and is used to make skimmed or watered milk look rich.

To test for coal tar dye place a small quantity of milk in a test tube. Add an equal amount of hydrochloric acid. Shake thoroughly. If the milk is colored with coal tar dye the mixture will turn pink.

To test for annatto make this experiment in a room where there is no fire. Place a tablespoonful of milk in a test tube. Add two tablespoonsfuls of ether. Shake well. The liquids will separate. Pour the upper one into a teacup and set the teacup into hot water. Add to the residue a few drops of ammonia and pour out on a small wet piece of filter paper. The fat will collect on the top of the paper, while the annatto if present will fill the pores of the paper. Wash off the fat gently. If annatto is present the paper will show orange.

A MESSAGE FROM A WOMAN TO WOMEN*"Every Woman Should Take "Fruit-a-tives"

LAKELEY, ONT., MAY 12th, 1913

"Kindly publish this letter of mine if you think it will benefit other women who might be afflicted with the diseases I have had in the past, but am now, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives', completely cured of. It is my firm belief that every woman should take 'Fruit-a-tives' if she wants to keep herself in good health.

Before taking 'Fruit-a-tives', I was constantly troubled with what is commonly known as 'Nerves' or severe Nervousness. This Nervousness brought on the most violent attacks of Sick Headache, for which I was constantly taking doctors' medicine without any permanent relief. Constipation was also a source of great trouble to me and for which the Doctors said 'I would have to take medicine all my life', but 'Fruit-a-tives' banished all these troubles and now I am a well woman."

DOCTORED FRUIT.

Aniline Dye and a Syringe for Coloring "Blood Oranges."

"I dare say you might find it difficult to believe that there could be an immense amount of trickery in the orange trade, but I can assure you that it is so," said the manager of one of the greatest firms of fruit salesmen in London.

"I don't now refer to such petty tricks of the retailer as shaking the oranges backwards and forwards in a sack to make the skins swell, but to the 'doctoring' of the fruit by the exporter abroad. In the case of both oranges and lemons there is always a tremendous rush to be first in the market with attractive and ripe-looking fruit just as their respective seasons begin, and the growers pluck the fruit when it is green and nothing like ripe, and it never ripens afterwards in most cases, though outwardly it seems as though it has done so."

"Special storerooms and furnaces are fitted up, and in the latter is burnt a mixture which is mainly sulphur, and to the fumes arising from this the oranges and lemons are exposed, the effect being to make them a beautiful yellow, which would deceive anyone who had no knowledge of the trade aboard. Great quantities of these oranges reach the early market."

"But the chief and greatest method of deception has relation to 'blood oranges.' The beautiful color of the pulp in huge quantities of these oranges is produced by a great staff of women employed by the wily foreign dealer. Each of these women has a delicately pointed syringe, with which she introduces into the oranges of an ordinary kind before her, a few drops of an aniline dye of a sort of lake color. This coloring matter is inserted at a point whence it seems at once to diffuse itself throughout the whole pulp of the orange acted upon."

THE COURSE DINNER.

How This Meal May Be Well Served With One Maid.

Many of our housewives who want the elegance of a course dinner, yet who are limited to the services of one maid, would be much amazed at the ease with which they can both cook and serve if a little forethought be used in the menu.

A preliminary cocktail, prepared beforehand from a bottled sauce or ketchup up and oysters or clams, makes a good beginning and can be made ready in the early morning and placed on ice to good advantage.

A clear soup with vermicelli or noodles can be cooked the day before and may simmer quietly for half an hour before serving time without further care.

Fish is well represented by deviled crabs, seasoned and turned into little mounds in the center of scallop shells. This may be done any time several hours previous to the feast, and all they need at mealtime is a simple browning in the oven.

Large and substantial roasts are not only hard to prepare and serve, but also fill the oven to the exclusion of everything else, so it is advisable to have delicious little steaks, fillet of beef, with canned peas and pomme de terre au gratin, and prepared early in the day from mashed potatoes and a sprinkling of grated cheese.

Most salads may without serious injury be mixed several hours before using and placed in a large bowl in the refrigerator, placing it on the lettuce leaves at serving time. Cheese balls are better made early and iced.

Certainly for dessert nothing could be more delicious, more appetizing or more decorative than individual charlotte russe, more popular than ice cream, with hot maple or chocolate sauce.

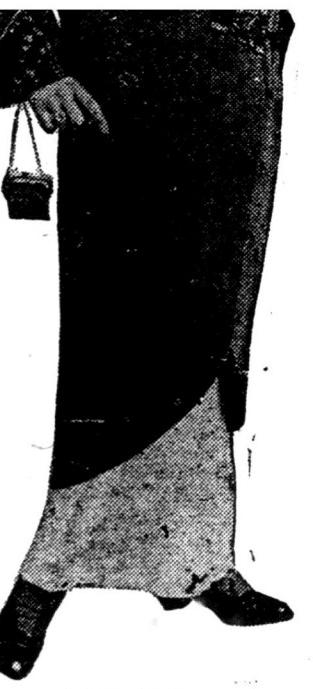

A Bowl Shower.

A very practical shower for a bride who is to keep house is one to which the guests are asked to bring bowls. There are wooden chopping bowls, brass and copper bowls, finger bowls of glass and of metal, mayonnaise bowls and even a punch bowl. To make fun part of the refreshments could be served in bowls and the tea in small handless cups, which are lovely to use for individual gelatin and jellies.

THE FOOD YOU BUY.

Test It Carefully, Particularly Milk Given to Baby.

Every housekeeper wants to give her family pure food. Usually she buys the best that her purse allows, trusting that it may be pure since she has no means within her reach of determining that it is so. The woman or a group of women ought to analyze among many other things the milk that they give their babies, whether it is pure or full of foreign substance. The following is quoted from the home which has affected the entire dress world, was not overlooked when it came to making up the spring topcoat.

The model illustrated is one of the newest designs. It is fashioned from a pale tan serge, with collar and cuffs of Turkish embroidery in dull colorings.

Care of Children.

Don't shut up the children in the night nursery at bedtime with never a door or window open.

Don't stop what is called transpiration through the skin by enveloping the children's bodies in feather mattresses.

Don't cover up the heads of the little ones on cold nights, as they did in old days, knowing no better.

Don't let your nurses run away with the idea that because they are not going to see any one the bairns need no washing before being put to bed.

Don't put several children to bed in the same room.

A Safe Bet.

A Durham farmer was travelling to London to consult a lawyer when the fear struck him that he had left certain important papers behind. He made a hurried search of his bag.

"If I did leave those papers," he remarked, "I'm a fool!"

The search proceeded, and a moment later he said:

"I believe it'll turn out I'm a fool!"

Just as he was examining the last bundle of papers he exclaimed:

"Well, I'll bet I'm a fool!"

A man on the other side of the compartment lowered his newspaper for a moment and said slowly and deliberately:

"Oblige me, sir, by laying a little money the same way for me."—Tribintroduces into the oranges of an ordinary kind before her, a few drops of an analine dye of a sort of lake color. This coloring matter is inserted at a point whence it seems at once to diffuse itself throughout the whole pulp of the orange acted upon.

"The dye is quite harmless, I believe, and neither the fruit upon which it is used nor the fumigated oranges show to the consumer any marked peculiarities of flavor. I have seen thousands of cases of these doped blood oranges abroad; and I may say, in regard to them, that the first man who introduced the process—an Italian—made a fortune before his methods became known."

Man With Half a Brain.

During the Swedish manoeuvres a soldier named Blomquist received a bullet in the head as the result of the awkwardness of a comrade. Trepanning was resorted to and half of the brain removed. The man was discharged cured and took his place in the ranks again, but some of his faculties were found to be deficient, and in particular he had forgotten how to read and write. He was discharged from the army and was made the object of study by some doctors, who to coin a word—re-educated him. In addition to his pension Blomquist receives an allowance of $250 a year from a learned society, the members of which wish to keep him under observation.

Diamond Making Without Risk.

The newest method of making diamonds, reported from Berlin, the formation of carbon crystals by decomposing ordinary coal gas with metallic amalgams of mercury, has at least the supreme merit of subjecting the maker to no danger. All previous attempts to rival nature as a diamond producer have been based on artificially creating the enormous temperatures and pressures to which carbon is subjected over vast periods of time in the earth. More than one experimenter has been blown to pieces in a vain attempt to produce those natural forces.—Westminster Gazette.

Long Hair and Short Pay.

Literary endeavors are not always rewarded so highly as some may think, according to this story from a German paper. A novelist of longer hair than pocketbook recently met a friend on the street.

"Hurrah!" cried the author. "I have just sold a novel."

"Congratulations!" his friend said warmly. "And now you can get a hair cut."

The writer's face fell, "No," he replied. "I should have to sell two novels for that."

A Cure For Hunger.

The King of Italy was brought up splendidly by Queen Margherita. When he was a boy he used on certain days to lunch with the king and queen. One day the king was detained, and luncheon was considerably delayed. The prince ventured to remark that he was hungry and couldn't wait any longer for his meal. Crossing the room to a bookshelf, the Queen took a copy of Dante and laid it before him, saying, "Read this and your hunger will all go."—London Graphic.

Runaway.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. S. McNeill and two children drove to town and while Mrs. McNeill stepped into a store she left the children in the buggy at the edge of the pavement. The horse started to run away, and colliding with a pole tore the top off the buggy depositing it neatly on the road, with one child still in it, the other managed to roll out when the horse started. Running up John street the horse collided with a hydrant in front of the Paisley House, where it left the remnants of the buggy. The horse then turned east and ran to the railroad and following the rails started across the big bridge on the ties and got nearly half way across before getting one leg caught in the ties where he fell. A hand car was requisitioned and willing hands rescued him from his perilous position not much the worse for his escapade. The children were entirely uninjured.

During the last year there has been a very live movement for the suppression of the liquor traffic in Norway. The present leader of the Radical party has pledged himself to drive away the enemy from the shores of Norway as far as lies in his power. Some years ago the Radicals attempted to bring in a measure prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor and Norway was jubilant. But France stepped in as a representative of the liquor traffic and threatened to exclude Norwegian stock, bonds and consols from the Parisian stock exchange. And Spain and Portugal threatened to place a duty on Norwegian smoked fish, which is a very important export at Norway, and the Norwegian Parliament clinched down, and the Norwegian people closed the jubilations. But Norway's women are now citizens and have a say in the legislation, and this time Parliament will not clinch down. Iceland has introduced a prohibitory measure with regard to alcohol and Norway has approached her with regard to a common action in case Spain and Portugal again try their boycott, for Iceland and Norway are the two largest exporters of smoked fish. And Norwegian workmen have banded together to restrict any action which Capitalists may take to force liquor on the people. We pride ourselves in Canada upon our intelligence but our European friends can still teach us lessons in resistance to evil. It would take some years to organize our Canadian workmen to this stand. And woman suffrage is still one of the things to come.

Laugh! Laugh! Laugh! "Charlie's Aunt" is Coming.

Charley's Aunt, the play that has made millions laugh will be the attraction at the Opera House next Tuesday,
May 13th, when the Sarah Gibney
Stock Co. will play an engagement of one night only in Napanee. This company which is playing a seven weeks' engagement of permanent stock at Griffin's Theatre in Belleville had the one night open owing to the Y. M. C. A. having the theatre engaged for that night and they have been secured for Napanee. They have just finished presenting Charley's Aunt in Belleville for three nights to audiences that taxed the capacity of the big theatre. The play will be given here in its entirety with the complete cast and a splendid equipment of special scenery. Anyone who enjoys seeing one of the best farce comedies ever written, presented by a clever, capable company of players, with the full scenic equipment necessary for the proper production of the play, cannot afford to miss Charley's Aunt by the Gibney's. The advance sale of seats will open at Paul's Bookstore on Friday morning. Special prices for this night only, 25c, 35c, 50c. Don't let the date slip your memory, Tuesday, May 13.

SPRING

We are pleased to announce that we have been appointed sole representatives in Napanee for the House of Hobberlin, tailors to the Canadian gentleman. This firm we have been informed employs a most skillful and artistic designer to whom they pay the modest sum of $8000 per annum.
Their sample outfit is the most elaborate we have ever seen from any house doing a special order business.
We KNOW their Cloths are of a high order and the range embraces every line that a good dresser could desire.
They absolutely guarantee every garment they turn out to be perfect in fit and workmanship. Money back if not satisfactory, and no grumbling.
What more could any man ask. We would be delighted to show their range of samples to any man contemplating the purchase of a new suit. If you order and the garments are not entirely satisfactory to YOU it will cost you nothing whatever but the time you spent in making your selection. We know of no fairer way of doing business.

Samples are now ready for inspec-
